Death Trap Blonde
Some Said Print It
She Tired of Seeing Him
Gen. Dawes' Good Vote

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1928, by Star Co.

THE HEADLINE WRITER finds new inspiration, "Death Trap Blonde," and it's in Cyrus H. K. Curtis' paper, not in a raging tabloid. The mysterious blonde, white, of course, "trapped" a negro politician in New York.

He drove with her to an uptown address, and when he got out a white man, stepping from behind the taxi, shot him in the back. The death trap blonde vanished, the police are puzzled, and the victim will recover.

Even Ike White will admit that the story is new, in crime.

England is observing the 300th anniversary of John Bunyan's birth. On November 25, "Bunyan Sunday" will be celebrated throughout the world. Nearly three centuries have passed since the humble tinker, locked in jail and compelled to meditate, with leisure to write, gave "Pilgrim's Progress" to the world, doubting and hesitating.

"Some said, John, print it;
Others said, Not so.
Some said, it might do good;
Others said no."

Publishers thought that only servants and others ignorant could possibly want the ignorant pedlar's simple book, and the only edition printed, at first, was bound in paper for a penny. You couldn't buy a copy of that first edition now for a thousand pounds. Sometimes simple things outlast others, more showy.

Mrs. Charles Hawkins, British, married 40 years, asks and gets a divorce, saying: "Husbands don't appreciate you if you stick at home all the time."

Now that he has her no longer, the lady's daughter says father comes home every night and looks at mother's empty chair. Mother says the chair will "stay empty," for she is tired of "seeing his face every day." Husbands take warning.

Married life has become uncertain, even for those that thought themselves safest.

General Dawes, who probably will be the Republican nominee if anything should happen to the Hoover boom, rendered yesterday a public service that the West will not forget. He cast his deciding vote to prevent adjournment of Congress today at 5 p. m. Without Dawes' vote that adjournment, against which Senator Hiram Johnson fought desperately, would have killed the Boulder Canyon Dam bill for this year.

Call money, used for stock gambling, also for legitimate installment purchasing, cost 6½ per cent yesterday, first time since 1921, and that hit stocks in the last hour. Big favorites dropped like an athlete from Barnum's roof. High finance knows that the only way to discourage vice, gambling included, is to make it EXPENSIVE. And for its own reasons high finance is determined to check speculation.

Farmers, who wonder why their McNary-Haugen bill was vetoed, might wonder about other things. For instance, Canadian railroad commissioners, lowering freight rates on

PARKER, POLICE JOIN IN DRIVE ON AUTO PERIL; 3 CRUSHED BY SPEEDERS

State authorities today joined with Charlestown police to put a stop to wild riding by boy automobile thieves, whose pastimes have terrorized the Bunker Hill district and seriously injured at least three persons.

While Superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley, following a conference with Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson, was issuing strict orders to get the joyriders, Capt. George A. Parker, state registrar of motor vehicles, was giving similar instructions to six inspectors.

The joint action followed the injuring of Patrolman Leon H. Re[illegible] of the Charlestown station, who was pinned against a wall by a stolen car driven by two young men, who leaped to the street and escaped.

The previous day Richard H. [illegible], 24 Washington st., Charlestown, and Daniel Conway, of 18

CONGRESS QUITS TODAY; BOULDER DAM FIGHT ON

Washington, May 29 (INS)—The first session of the Seventieth Congress ends at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon.

After the Senate had adopted, 48 to 35, a resolution to adjourn at that hour, the House approved it, 175 to 9.

Senator Bruce (Dem.) of Maryland blocked all attempts for agreement to make the Boulder Dam bill the "unfinished business" of the Senate at its session in December.

After fiery arguments, the Senate went into executive session to consider presidential appointments. The motion was made by Senator Borah (R) of Idaho. Obviously to pour oil on the troubled waters.

At the conclusion of the fight Johnson arose and delivered a magnificent gesture of defeat. He was given a tremendous ovation by the galleries and his colleagues.

"I am whipped," he said, his voice choking, "yes, but by Heaven, sir, there is another day coming and some one else may be whipped."

The galleries burst into prolonged

FULLER TO PRESS 'L' VOTE IN LEGISLATURE

Governor Fuller, it is indicated, will insist that the Legislature solve the "El" problem before prorogation. Those close to the Governor are of the opinion that his views will be put before both branches shortly in a special message.

Today Interstate Commerce Commissioner Joseph B. Eastman visited the Governor, and, while he said he came to Boston primarily to address the Executives Club of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, he admitted that the "El" situation was discussed.

The commissioner further added that he has not changed his views in which he advocated the acquiring by the State of the stock of the company, a form of public ownership.

HOT RUM PROBE DEBATE BREAKS OUT IN HOUSE

Receiving an order today from the joint rules committee for a sweeping investigation of State House rum charges by a special committee of five members, the House of Representatives was immediately embroiled in feverish debate and hotly contested parliamentary strategy.

The order, reported to the House only after long argument in committee, calls for a public investigation by a commission with broad powers to summon witnesses, command the presentation of papers, books and records, and take testimony under oath.

The order provides for a commit-

Chrysler, Dodge in Merger

New York, May 29 (INS)—A merger of the Chrysler Corporation and Dodge Brothers, Inc., two of the best known motor car manufacturers of this country, will be effected within the next 24 hours, according to reliable reports in the New York financial district today.

Unusual strength [illegible] of the stocks of the two corporations in the New York market today gave rise to the reports of special developments in the ownership and operations of the properties of the companies. Dodge Brothers preferred jumped about 12 points while the common moved upward 2 points and the 6 per cent bonds 4 points. Chrysler sold above 85, a gain of 11 points over yesterday's low price, in one of the most active days in the history of the stock.

WAITERS GO ON TRIAL IN HOTEL LIQUOR CASE

The much-discussed trial of five waiters of the Hotel Ritz of the South End, charged with selling liquor to Raymond Perry, agent for the New England Watch and Ward Society, started today before Judge Hayes and a jury in Suffolk Superior Court.

The defendants, Daniel Urany, Herbert Smith, Thomas Ryan, Thomas Nash and Peter Pappas, were represented by Robert J. Gallagher. Assistant District Attorney Joseph Scolponeti appeared for the government, and George A. Douglass and John Rorke for the Watch and Ward Society.

SEARCH FOR NOBILE AIRSHIP IS HALTED

Oslo, Norway, May 29 (AP)—An auxiliary relief expedition which the Norwegian Government has been preparing to search for the lost dirigible Italia was suspended indefinitely today, as the Italian Government was said to be inclined to await further developments.

Meanwhile Lieut. Leutzow Holm, crack Norwegian flier, boarded the sealer Hobby at Tromsoe with his hydroairplane and will sail as soon as possible for Spitzbergen to conduct an air search over the northern coast of Spitzbergen.

Reports that the Italia had come down on Amsterdam Island, along the northern coast of Spitzbergen, are not credited in Oslo as nothing to this effect has been received from the Citti Di Milano, now battling her way in a snowstorm in the waters north of Spitzbergen in an effort to find trace of the Italia.

Early reports today had said the Citta Di Milano was ice bound on its way north through great ice floes.

While doubting that the Italia landed on Amsterdam Island, Capt. Riiser-Larsen, leader of the Norwegian relief party and an authority on flying in the North, is of the opinion that the dirigible probably came down somewhere on the ice north of Spitzbergen, and that a survey by air of the region offers the best hope of finding the ship.

The Italian legation at Oslo has kept in close wireless contact with the Citta Di Milano, but has received no information

WIFE SAYS HUBBY GOT $10,000 WHEN HE WED

Samuel J. Ginsberg, wealthy Boston insurance broker, received $10,000 "as part of the transaction," when he married Ella Bernstein he admitted in Middlesex Probate Court today at a hearing of a petition brought by his wife for $100 weekly separate support.

Her mother gave him the $10,000, Mrs. Ginsberg testified, and also bought them the Waban house in which she lives with her three children. Ginsberg lives at the City Club.

They lived together until April, 1927, making their home in Brookline before moving to Waban, Mrs. Ginsberg told the court. She said she had three maids in Brookline and had been receiving $100 weekly for herself and children. Her husband, she said, told her he made $300 a week.

Mrs. Ginsberg presented the court with a budget of weekly expenses amounting to $126.20. She said it would be possible for her to get along on $100, however. Among the budget items were the following:

Salary for maid	$20.00
Groceries	15.00
Meat and poultry	15.00
Gas and light	6.00
Telephone	2.50

LOWELL GIRL CONFESSES LURING BULLET VICTIM

New York, May 29—Gladys McCarver, 20-year-old blonde dancer, who says she lives in Lowell, Mass., was arrested today in connection with the shooting of Jesse Blount, negro cabaret owner, by an unidentified white man.

The girl, accused of luring Blount to an uptown address in a taxi Sunday, when he was shot and seriously wounded, walked into the West 47th st. police station and said her conscience had brought her back from Atlantic City. She said she had gone to the beach with another girl after the shooting. A charge

Arctic Explorers Volunteer for Dash Into Realm of the Frozen Death In Huge Sweep to Find Nobile

VILHJALMUR STEFANSON

Stefansson Fears There's No Hope for Nobile

New York, May 29 (AP)—Vilhjalmur Stefansson, famous Polar explorer, fears that the dirigible Italia may have been forced down in dangerous Arctic waters, and if so sees little hope for the safety of Gen. Nobile and his crew.

If they have landed safely on an ice island and can rig up a radio with which to give rescuers their position they probably are comfortable and not in any great danger, he said. He declared the temperature of that region at this time of year is about 35 degrees above zero in the shade while when the sun shines the temperature sometimes rises to 70 degrees.

MAP SHOWS VAST EXTENT OF SEARCH FOR NOBILE, HIS VALIANT CREW AND THEIR DIRIGIBLE

Map drawn by Boston Evening American Staff Artist Charles Schmidt from telegraph news of the hunt for Gen. Nobile and the Italia and the dirigible's crew of 16 in the wilds of the Polar region. Every means and modern device known to man have been hurled into the fight to rescue the expedition, which met mishap soon after it had succeeded in its mission of placing a cross blessed by the Pope upon the top of the world.

CAPT. GEORGE H. WILKINS

Capt. Wilkins and Eielson Offer to Aid in Search

Oslo, Norway, May 29—Capt. George H. Wilkins and Lieut. Carl B. Eielson, who only recently completed a flight over the Arctic wastes, have offered their services in the rescue work in behalf of the crew of the Italia.

Capt. Wilkins sent the following message to Premier Mussolini of Italy:

"Learning that the Norwegian government has placed Capt. Riiser-Larsen at the head of an expedition at your disposal, we realize that everything will be done in a most competent manner. If it is considered that the services of our machine or ourselves can be the least aid to our friend Nobile, please consider us yours to command."

from her indicating that any trace of the Italia had been found.

The base ship is reported to have passed Amsterdam Island, which is 70 miles north of King's Bay, on its outward trip Sunday. The ship is now far into polar waters.

A late report from the Citta di Milano said experienced hunters would be a big assistance in pressing the search for the lost dirigible in the frozen arctic wastes.

En route north the Citta di Milano took aboard one hunter at Magdalena Bay, where she sought shelter from the ice floes which were being driven before a strong wind. She was endeavoring to get in touch with other hunters.

One team of dogs, driven by two experts named Tandberg and Noeis, was ready to make a trip of three or four days to Widje Fjord in the hope of learning the fate of Gen. Umberto Nobile and his crew of 17. Other plans were afoot for exploration with the huskies of the north.

The base ship reported that fog hung over the mountains and visibility was poor.

May Have Blown Up

A pall of gloom today hung over the dozen men of the Italia's base crew at King's Bay and pessimistic conjecture as to the fate of the Italia added to the dismal atmosphere.

A German-American motion picture photographer named Hartman, who served as a radio operator aboard a Zeppelin during the war, suggested that the Italia might have caught fire and exploded, as did two big German airships in the war.

While dog teams and "mushers" are expected to play an important part in the search for the lost dirigible, men experienced in penetrating the bleak Arctic today placed their own reliance on large airplanes for use in the hunt.

The planes would use ships equipped for work among the ice floes of the north as bases.

The Swedish steamship Broganza today was enroute from Tromsoe to Spitzbergen to aid in the search.

Planes to Aid Hunt

Captain George H. Wilkins and Lieutenant Carl B. Eielson, who flew from Alaska to Spitzbergen, have volunteered their services in the search to Premier Mussolini of Italy.

They also participated in conferences planning expeditions, as did other men with knowledge of the inhospitable polar regions, such as Roald Amundsen and Captain Otto Sverdrup.

Rome Disheartened by False Nobile Reports

Rome, May 29 (AP)—Word from the relief ship Citta di Milano that she was encountering great obstacles in searching for the missing dirigible Italia off northern Spitzbergen, coupled with a denial of reports that the dirigible had been found on Amsterdam Island served to dampen the enthusiasm and hope aroused in Rome today by the first rumors that the airship had been located.

Much impatience was manifested throughout the city at the number of false rumors which have been flying about and even published, notably those originating with amateur radio operators.

The news from the Citta di Milano said that she was butting her way northward in a snowstorm, confronted with a big ice barrier at the 80th degree latitude, north of Amsterdam Island, and must try to seek another passage to the eastward.

There was little doubt that the Italia had come down somewhere north of Spitzbergen, but just where in the icy and inhospitable region bordering upon the archipelago was not even suggested in the advices that have reached the Italian government from Kings Bay and the Citta di Milano.

HEATH TO BE ORATOR AT VETERANS' MEMORIAL

The principal oration tomorrow at Forest Hills Cemetery during services of Roger Wolcott Camp, United Spanish War Veterans, will be delivered by Victor A. Heath, who served in the Philippines during the Spanish-American War.

Among organizations that will take part in the exercises are included Michael J. O'Connell Post, American Legion, and Irving W. Adams Post, American Legion.

During the morning, Roger Wolcott Camp will decorate the grave of Roger Wolcott, war Governor, at Mt. Auburn Cemetery.

"1000" Kisses Nobile's Last Radio to Family

ROME, May 29—"A thousand kisses to you and Maria and affectionate salutations to the families of my dear companions in the flight to the North Pole."

This message from Gen. Umberto Nobile aboard the Italia as the dirigible neared the North Pole Thursday morning was the last word received by Signora Carlotta Nobile, wife of the explorer, since the Italia left four days ago to disappear into the storms raging about the polar regions.

Maria, mentioned in the message, is the ten-year-old daughter of General and Mrs. Nobile.

TWO VETOES BY GOV. FULLER

Governor Fuller today vetoed two bills. One was to increase the salaries of court officers in East Boston court $200 a year. The House sustained the veto on the East Boston bill, which would have increased salaries to $2200.

The other bill provided for increases for messengers in supreme and superior courts, chief deputy sheriffs and court officers in Middlesex and Suffolk. The Governor said compensation of court officers is adequate for the services they perform.

RADIOS FAIL TO HEAR AGAIN FROM NOBILE

San Francisco, May 29 (INS)—Although radio corporations and amateur operators here maintained their persistent lookout, no new signals through the ether had been intercepted today which might possibly furnish some definite clue to the whereabouts of Gen. Umberto Nobile's missing exploration dirigible Italia.

Efforts on the part of experts of the radio corporation to communicate with what is believed to be an amateur station in Siberia that relayed a distress signal Sunday from the lost balloon, proved futile.

The signal, purportedly signed by Gen. Nobile, is the only message to have been picked up here.

Advices from Alaska disclosed that radio stations there, although constantly on the alert, had failed to intercept a single call from the Italia since the dirigible left Spitzbergen on the flight to the North Pole.

Confirmation was totally lacking of rumors that Gen. Nobile, if advancing in a westerly direction, was making efforts to reach Fairbanks, Alaska.

A radio message from the City of Milan, supply ship of the Italia, was intercepted late yesterday afternoon by the Government wireless station at Cordova.

It stated the ship was hampered in its rescue trip by great icefloes and gave the ship's position as north of Cape Barren, 80 degrees north latitude.

THEA RASCHE PLANS TO HOP FROM OLD ORCHARD

Portland, Me., May 29 (AP)—The Express in a copyrighted story today declares that Thea Rasche, German aviatrix, plans shortly to hop off from Old Orchard for Berlin. Her Bellanca plane was ready to leave Mitchel Field in New York for Old Orchard Monday, the Express says, but thick fog forced a postponement. She will make a series of test flights at Old Orchard before attempting the transatlantic hop.

Indications were that the weather would hold her at Mitchel Field until Saturday.

TWENTY YEARS IN JAIL FOR FIVE PICKPOCKETS

Jail sentences aggregating more than 20 years were imposed upon five convicted pickpockets in Middlesex Superior Court by Judge Broadhurst today. The five were members fo a "ring" which conspired to rob in Elevated busses in Cambridge.

Walter Rowe, alleged leader of the gang, was sentenced to from eight to twelve years, Edward J. Powers, John Cheaisa and Arthur Murray were given three and one-half years each, and Walter Fallon three months.

He was taken to the Chelsea Memorial Hospital, where he was found to have sustained a fractured right leg, internal injuries and injuries of the head and face.

SAYS HUSBAND WROTE SHE GAVE HIM 'DEMON'

Declaring she was accused by her husband of putting a demon in his life and poisoning him, after 50 years of married life, Mrs. Adelaide H. Gage, 80, of Dover, N. H., testified today in federal court at trial of her $20,000 alienation suit.

The case was quickly dismissed by Judge James A. Lowell, during cross-examination of Mrs. Gage, when it developed that a somewhat similar suit in New Hampshire had been dismissed by the court there.

The aged woman sued her husband's brother and sisters, William D. Gage of Boston, Mary A. Sherry of Haverhill, and Annie W. Young of Boston, alleging they robbed her of her husband's affections and prevented his return to her.

Reference to a demon and poison were in letters which she introduced, claiming her husband, Charles H. Gage, wrote them to her from Boston under direction of her relatives.

Nobile Radio Call Heard by N. H. Boy Bremen Hero

Manchester, N. H., May 29—Stuart Davis, 18-year-old amateur radio expert who first gave the world the news of the transatlantic plane Bremen landing at Greenly Island, reported today that he received the radio signals first believed to have come from the lost dirigible Italia.

The signals were first announced from the Pacific Coast. Stuart said today he believed they were received originally from the Nobile dirigible at an amateur station at Novograd, Siberia.

FIGHT REPORT FOR STATE RUM INQUIRY

tee of three representatives and two senators.

The investigation as outlined in the order would include the stories of wild parties in the State House as told by the local Anti-Saloon League head and reports of distribution of seized liquors to favored individuals as told by certain state employes.

Long argument by members of the joint rules committee, behind closed doors, was only the forerunner of a red hot argument in the House after the order was reported.

Motion was made to suspend the rules so that the question could be debated and voted on today. This motion was defeated, reconsidered, and again defeated, but when a roll-call vote was taken the motion carried.

Vigorous arguments both against the proposed investigation and against voting too soon marked every phase of these parliamentary maneuvers, Rep. Lomasney declaring that there was an attempt to "railroad" the order through the House.

As regards the order itself, Lomasney said, "Let us have a real investigation, not a fishing expedition for political purposes; this order is not what it purports to be."

The rules committee was reported to have redrafted the order repeatedly before its form met with the approval of all, and even then approval was grudgingly given, it was understood.

An influential group in the committee was found to be stubbornly opposed to granting an investigation of the strength of "loose charges."

This group argued that accusers should be forced to present what facts they have to the rules committee as a whole, which could then decide whether or not a public probe by a special commission, with power to summon witnesses and take testimony under oath, was warranted.

The meeting of the rules committee was behind closed doors, as is customary, and followed a long session last night at which the same arguments cropped up.

Political considerations are also playing a role in the situation, it is said. Shrewd observers pointed out that the support of the Anti-Saloon League is much desired by candidates for high political office at the coming fall election.

Supt. William M. Forgrave, Bay State chief of the league, is the maker of some of the accusations to be investigated.

Forgrave declared today that he would willingly testify without waiting to be summoned when the legislative investigation gets under way, setting at rest rumors that he would not appear except before a commission composed entirely of persons outside the State service.

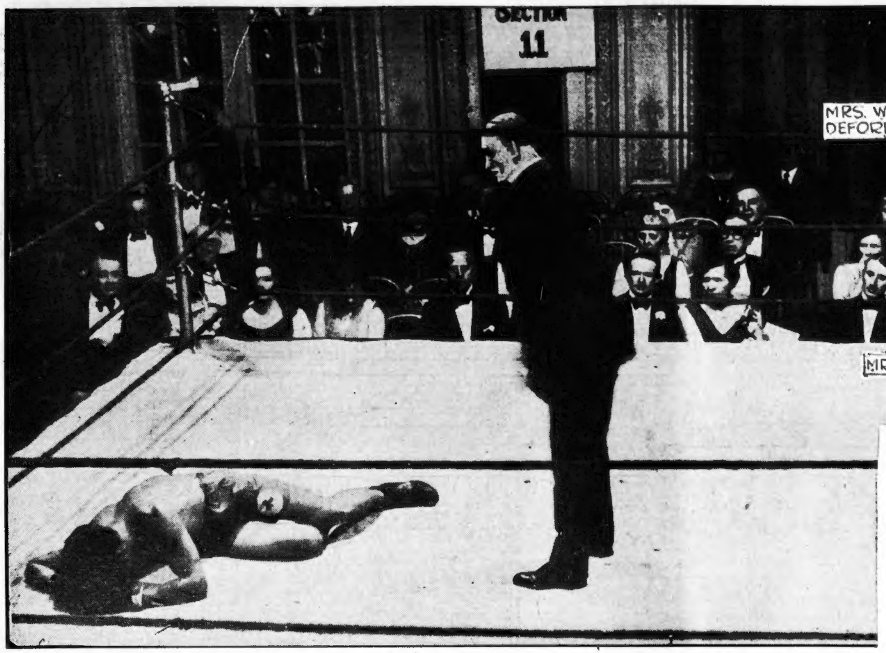
"I will appear without waiting for summons," said Forgrave. "Such a committee suits me. It is wrong to suppose that I desire a hand-picked commission of fanatics, either 'wet' or 'dry.'

"I will do everything in my power to have the two detectives, who have affidavits, here in person to testify.

"I simply wanted to appear before a committee with sufficient authority and power to conduct an investigation of wide scope. The committee as now proposed apparently will have such scope."

Forgrave denied that he had charged that "flappers" attended the alleged party in Room 446 of the State House just after prorogation of the Legislature in 1927.

THUD OF FISTS FAILS TO THRILL SOCIETY AT BOUTS



ELITE UNMOVED BY RINGSIDE JARS, JABS AND JOLTS
'Twas a rare scene at the Copley-Plaza Hotel when Back Bay society staged its own boxing show. 'Twas a snappy, peppy program that the various fighters developed, but somehow the "400" failed to react as do the regular ringsiders. They didn't get the thrills that the "regulars" present got.

BARES THREATS TO KILL IN DIVORCE SUIT

Mrs. Albene M. Lawrie of Belmont, seeking a divorce in East Cambridge, told the court Oswald A. Lawrie threatened to kill her, her mother and her baby.

Wife Still Waits for Husband to Return From Civil War

Tomorrow will be a sad occasion for Mrs. Rose Coyle Fernald, 83-year-old inmate of the Home of the Little Sisters of the Poor, Highland ave., Somerville.

For more than 60 years Mrs. Fernald has been attempting to learn the fate of her husband, George Fernald, who enlisted in the navy in 1862 when he was a bridegroom, and then dropped out of sight.

The Navy Department has never been able to give Mrs. Fernald any definite information concerning the missing man, and she has never abandoned hope that he is still alive.

The couple were married in St. Mary's Church in Lawrence in 1862, and went to Portsmouth, N. H., on their honeymoon. The war was on and Fernald enlisted, his wife returning to her home in Ballardvale, near Andover.

WIFE SAYS MATE THREATENED TO SHOOT THREE

Depicting herself as a wife whose drunken husband held a loaded revolver to her breast and threatened to kill her mother, herself and her baby, Mrs. Albene M. Lawrie of Payson rd., Belmont, sought divorce today in Middlesex Probate Court, from Oswald A. Lawrie, a salesman.

She charges cruel and abusive treatment and intoxication against Lawrie.

Store bills in the name of a woman and many room receipts from a hotel in Boston were found in his pockets by the wife, she testified.

The wife recited that on last December 1 her husband arrived home "in a horrible condition." He was so drunk, she said, that he could not unlock the door, and when he staggered in his hat was missing and his face was bruised and cut.

When Mrs. Lawrie asked that he stop his noise and not wake the baby, he went into a room, she testified, reappeared with a revolver, pushed her mother into a room, placed the revolver against his wife's breast and threatened to kill her, the baby and the baby's grandmother.

COPLEY-PLAZA BOXING FAILS TO THRILL '400'

By MYLES T. McSWEENEY

Like a red-headed tramp with a monocle. A glitter around the ringside, bright colors and a flash of jewels. A fringe of the great unshaven—drab caps pulled over cold chiseled faces, banked around the rear of the hall.

The evolution of the human race. Bodies of twisted muscle, dented features and bulging ears, circled by soft pink and white faces of ringside debutantes.

This is the poetic janitor's description of the society bouts held last evening in the ball-room of the Copley-Plaza.

The poetic janitor whispered this to me as I departed.

If the sweeper who wooed the muses had not chanted his impressions of these bouts, held under the auspices of Boston's 400, more or less, there might be no story. For how can one, used to the roar of the frenzied mob, clamoring for blood, describe an affair where spectators, as immobile as statues, sat in silence for half the evening, while boys battered each other about the resined canvas.

VETERANS WILL PAY HONORS AT 16,000 GRAVES

Up the long hills, grown steeper, it seems, with the passing of years, a thinning line of white-haired, blue clad veterans march tomorrow. To old cemeteries where there are trees and ivy and a great peace—and comrades sleeping.

Throughout Boston and Massachusetts tomorrow the blue clad rank will honor its dead.

Boston will officially participate in the decoration of 16,000 graves under arrangement made by Mayor Nichols and George H. Johnson with the various posts, camps and auxiliaries of all veterans' organizations.

Department Commander Edwin J. Foster of the G. A. R., Commander Frederick K. Loring of the Spanish War Veterans, Department Commander John W. Reth of the American Legion, and Commander John H. Wallace, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will have the supervision.

The grave of Patrolman Jeremiah J. Casey who died in February, 1924, when attached to the East Boston station, has been selected as the grave to be decorated tomorrow by the Boston Police Department, as a mark of respect to all police dead.

Taking part in the decoration at New Calvary Cemetery, Dorchester, will be the police posts of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and a regular police detail. The veterans' band will take part.

Supt. of Police Michael H. Crowley will make a brief address at the grave and Lt. Kavanaugh will read the roll of police dead.

A volley will be fired and taps sounded.

rley st., Cambridge, were struck wn as they left their work in the arlestown yards of the Boston Maine.

PORTED DYING

Walsh is reported dying of a fracred skull in Haymarket Relief Hostal, and Conway is in the same institution, although less seriously inred. They were run down by a olen car containing five youths, ho narrowly missed Motorcycle Ofcer Albert W. Metcalf when he atmpted to stop them.

Today Commissioner Wilson called upt. Crowley into conference and a ort time later the superintendent nnounced that Capt. Michael H. off of the Charlestown division ould set a trap to catch the boys tealing automobiles and driving hem at reckless speed through the istrict.

He refused to go into detail, but it s understood that a big detail of lain clothes men will be scattered hrough the district nightly, with orers to clamp down on every violator f automobile laws.

PARKER ON WARPATH.

At the same time Capt. Parker stated he had been conferring with six of his inspectors regarding the Charlestown situation, with instructions to them to clean up the violators.

"It is a dangerous situation," said Capt. Parker, "and must be stopped. Today I instructed half a dozen of my men to do all they can to bring violators of the automobile laws to justice.

"We will make a special effort to get the two men who were in the car that struck Patrolman de Roehn.

Despite the fact that they jumped out of the car before it struck him, they were guilty of 'hit-and-run' tactics. They were violating the law in driving a stolen automobile and they did hit the policeman."

IS NEW OUTBREAK

"This automobile stealing is periodical in Charlestown," said Capt. Goff. "Three months ago we had about 10 or 15 boys in juvenile court for these offenses and they dropped off. Now there is a fresh outbreak."

It is understood that one reason why the boy joyriders have gotten by for so long is that heretofore the police have been warned against drastic action for fear of injuring bystanders. One officer, said to have thrown his club at two boys in a stolen car, was cautioned on the theory that if anyone was injured police would be criticized.

As a result, the police have been virtually helpless against racing machines, driven by boys emulating Jimmy "Shiner" Sheehan, Charlestown speed demon, who was eventually sent to Concord Reformatory.

After escaping from Shirley school two years ago, Sheehan, then 16, stole a different car each night in Charlestown and electrified the citizenry by roaring through the streets at 60 miles an hour. Sheehan put on his shows for several days, with the police unable to capture him, and then surrendered at Shirley school and was sent to Concord.

Births in the Bay State Decrease 1203 in 1927

Births in Massachusetts in 1927 decreased over the previous year to the number of 1203.

Figures made public today from the office of the Secretary of State showed 82,299 births for 1927 as against 83,502 in 1926. The average birth rate for the two years is 19.3 and 19.8 per thousand of population.

Based on every thousand live births there was an average infant mortality of 64.6 in 1927. In 1926 the average was 73.4.

Under cross-examination Mrs. Ginsberg denied she went out to parties.

"Don't you play bridge?" she was asked.

GAMBLED AT MAH JONG.

"That's done nowadays, isn't it?" interrupted Judge Leggatt.

Mrs. Ginsberg denied she played bridge for money, but admitted she did gamble at mah jong.

"If anyone got $1 out of me playing mah jong they were doing wonderfully well," she said.

She testified her father-in-law "never made a gift to anyone." Their summer home in Nantasket Ginsberg bought with her money, she said.

"He wanted to fix it up like a millionaire's mansion," she said.

Taking the stand, Ginsberg admitted he received $10,000 as "part of the transaction" when he wed his wife. He said there was no stipulation in the transaction that required him to remain with her.

"There was no obligation for you to stay married to your wife?"

"No, sir."

"You could leave her any time you wanted to?"

"Yes, sir."

George Bernstein, Lowell attorney and brother of Mrs. Ginsberg, testified Ginsberg had told him he was receiving $100 weekly from a plate glass insurance company, of which he is assistant treasurer, and $4000 annually from his own insurance brokerage business.

NICHOLS WANTS 40-YEAR WATER NOTE EXTENSION

Malcolm E. Nichols today announced his intention of appearing before the Legislature to obtain extension of time on Metropolitan water bonds, for which Governor Fuller yesterday recommended 30 years. The mayor said relief suggested by the Governor would not benefit to any considerable extent the 20 cities and towns of the Metropolitan water district, which want at least 40 years.

Mayor Bauer went immediately to police headquarters and made his declaration for neatness.

applause, while even Senators and members of the House seated on the floor, joined in the cheering.

The Senate vote astounded Boulder Dam adherents, in view of their victory of yesterday when Vice-President Dawes broke a tie to vote against adjournment.

The wide difference between the 40 to 40 vote yesterday and the 46 to 35 ballot today was due to a shifting of senators favorable to the Mississippi barge line bill, which was passed late yesterday.

This caused Reed and Hawes of Missouri to switch and vote for adjournment.

Thomas (D.) of Oklahoma did likewise. The adjournment group gained three new votes, Swanson (D.) of Virginia, Ransdell (D.) of Louisiana, and Schall (R.) of Minnesota, who did not vote yesterday.

Howell (R.) of Nebraska and Kendrick (D.) of Wyoming failed to vote today. They opposed adjournment yesterday.

New England's vote was the same as yesterday, Walsh of Massachusetts, Dale of Vermont and Hale of Maine voting against adjournment, while the other nine voted for it.

The adjournment resolution was put in by Curtis, Republican leader, after Ashurst and Hayden of Arizona had talked all night in a filibuster to prevent a Boulder Dam vote.

Thousands 'Dare Death' to See Town 'Wiped Out'

London, May 29 (AP)—The charming coast resort of Weymouth was the most excited place in England today, for some lurid prophet had picked on this inoffensive place as the scene of a special visitation in connection with the pyramid predictions, which fixed 3:53 o'clock this afternoon as a dread moment in world history.

The special prediction was that Weymouth was to be overcome by a tidal wave at that time.

The forecast had a paradoxical effect, packing the town with curious visitors who came from all parts of the country to see what would happen—if anything. By 3 o'clock the promenade was thronged with huge crowds, while thousands of motor cars were parked nearby, with some of the most timid owners remaining in their cars, so as to escape more easily if an oncoming wave were sighted.

The general disposition of the crowd, however, was to treat the affair as a huge joke. Just before 4 o'clock a message came over the wires from Weymouth to London, timed 3:53½, reading:

"Weymouth is still on the map. Nothing has happened."

Enjoy These Luscious Oranges

Sunkist have richer juice, finer flavor

Your doctor will tell you to eat oranges liberally each day to protect and promote health. Every Sunkist Orange displayed by store or stand is a good health message direct from California's orchards.

Oranges are writing a new health story. Today, the Medical Profession recognizes oranges as one of the most potent correctives of ACIDOSIS, a common malady due to too much acid food which creates an "under par" condition. Oranges, like lemons, though known as acid fruits, have an alkaline reaction in the body, thus providing a quick, convenient insurance against Acidosis. Drink orange juice liberally.

Sweet, juicy, California oranges contain quantities of vitamins and mineral salts. They are a necessity in body building. You cannot eat too many oranges—in salads and desserts, out of hand, or as juice.

Sunkist Oranges are uniformly dependable—and available wherever fruit is sold. They are packed in ten different sizes—a size for every pocketbook. It is a fine health habit to keep these sweet, practically seedless oranges on hand at all times.

Leading Hollywood directors decide girl's greatest charm is smooth skin

Screen stars know the velvety beauty of their skin heightens their allure. Directors have found that very little make-up is possible under the fierce lights of the close-up. Therefore stars must keep their skin always appealingly smooth, exquisite. 96% of all the lovely complexions you see on the screen are cared for with Lux Toilet Soap.

A GIRL'S lovely skin adds so much to her charm—a million hearts beat faster when the close-up reveals the radiant loveliness of a screen star.

To screen successfully in close-ups exquisite velvety skin is essential, say leading motion picture directors!

Nine out of ten screen stars use Lux Toilet Soap.

There are in Hollywood 433 important actresses, including all stars. 417 of these use Lux Toilet Soap.

All the great film studios have made it the official soap in dressing rooms.

CORINNE GRIFFITH and the beautiful bathroom that was especially designed to harmonize with the loveliness of this popular First National star.

"The thing I like best about Lux Toilet Soap is the wonderful smoothness of my skin after it. It has that same velvety feeling that the finest French soaps give you."

Corinne Griffith

MARION DAVIES' beauty has made her famous all over the world. Miss Davies writes, "A deliciously smooth skin is a great asset to a star. I am delighted with Lux Toilet Soap."

LUPE VELEZ brought with her from Mexico the fiery allure of the Spanish. "I find that Lux Toilet Soap keeps my skin like velvet—with the softness, the attractiveness, it should have. You must have beautiful skin under those great lights of the close-up," this little Wampus star, now with United Artists, says wisely.

CLARA BOW is one of Paramount's most popular stars. She, too, uses this white, fragrant soap for the lovely skin she is famous for. "Lux Toilet Soap keeps my skin in perfect condition," she says.

"I used to say 'it is impossible to find in America a soap of the luxury of imported soaps,' but then I found Lux Toilet Soap," GRETA NISSEN declares. "It feels delicious to my skin and makes it so soft and smooth."

Olympic Fund to Profit by Money Taken in at Copley-Plaza Bouts

VERY CALMLY, AT TIMES even very coolly, did Society last evening take its first taste of "fistiana" done in the grand manner. To be sure the affair, so far as society adorned the scene, was sartorially correct. It came out decollete and white shirted. Calciums gleamed on priceless ropes of pearls. Milady's swathing wraps of glinting metal cloth and soft furs enveloped smart frocks. Masculinity, correct in linen and broadcloth, was sombrely perfect.

ALL THE TRIMMINGS OF A gala occasion were provided, as was to be expected when fisticuffs were staged amid aesthetic surrounding, for a good cause, and in a gilded auditorium such as the Hotel Copley-Plaza's pale cream and gold ballroom. But seldom during the evening did Boston's habitual calm desert it. Even when budding "Tunneys" and future "Dempseys" were battling manfully in the calcium-bathed ring Society sat in its gilt chairs quite unmoved and casually puffed its cigarettes. Not until the amusing wrestlers climbed over the ropes and performed did the Smart Set become spontaneously and truly bout fans.

TWO SUCH WRESTLERS AS "Bull" Komar and "Farmer" McLeod could not fail to enthuse even a Boston upper crust gathering. These two wound up an evening that certainly was an innovation, so far as affairs "in aid of" are concerned. An evening extremely entertaining also, even though the rain of shekels into the Olympic Fund may not make the wide and golden stream Miss Louise Fessenden, George Wightman and others of the show promotors had hoped.

MISS FESSENDEN WAS A busy young woman. She had directly in her charge the usher staff, recruited, as usual, from Junior League ranks. And the ushers, also as usual, did their valiant best to find expeditiously the gilt chairs numbered to match tickets of admission and to seat the spectators. They showed Mrs. Frederick Wadsworth Busk and her brother, Henry Fessenden, to places choicely "ringside." Nearby was that popular young man, Mr. Sharkey, who received an ovation when he appeared for a moment in the ring, not as a boxer but as referee.

MISS LOUISE BATCHELDER came in with a large group. And she and they were adjacent to the ring and quite absorbed in the spectacle. Miss Batchelder's costumes always have piquant accompaniment, such as striking costume jewels or unusual wraps. Last evening her frock of hyacinthe purple was accented by an enveloping cape wrap of gold cloth and rose, and from her ears enormously long earrings dangled. Mrs. Huntington Hardwick was in taffeta of sombre hue, her dark wealth of hair coiled in the classic fashion she follows so successfully.

COOLIDGE SIGNS $222,495,000 TAX CUT BILL

Washington, May 29 (AP)—The tax reduction bill was signed today by President Coolidge.

The measure, which now is law, provides for an estimated annual reduction in tax payments of $222,495,000.

However, the cut in government revenue under the act is estimated at only $135,000,000 for the next fiscal year beginning July 1, the full force of the reduction not being felt until the following fiscal year.

Corporations are the chief beneficiaries under the new act which makes virtually no changes in the present individual income tax rates. The law provides:

Reduction of the corporation tax from 13 1-2 to 12 per cent. Loss in revenue $123,450,000.

Increase in exemption allowed corporations from $2000 to $3000. Loss $12,000,000.

Repeal of the 3 per cent automobile tax. Loss $66,000,000.

Increase in exemptions in admissions tax from 75 cents to $3. Loss $17,000,000.

Increase in exemption from 10 per cent tax on club dues from $10 to $25. Loss $1,000,000.

Increase from $20,000 to $30,000 on maximum exemption for earned income credit. Loss $4,500,000.

Reduction tax on wines to prewar level. Loss $1,000,000.

Repeal of tax on cereal beverages. Loss $185,000.

Increase in tax on prize fights for tickets of $5 and over from 10 per cent to 25 per cent. Increase in revenue $750,000.

Coolidge Vetoes Recall Record Set by Cleveland

Washington, May 29 (AP)—As was the case 42 years ago when Grover Cleveland turned back to Congress 116 bills without his signature, the gulf between President Coolidge and Congress this year had its source in the constitutional power of the President to veto the work of the legislative establishment.

Although the Cleveland record bids fair to stand the test of time, Mr. Coolidge set a modern record of disapproving 13 bills. Congress on its part likewise set a modern mark in overriding the President on three of six that were brought to a vote for repassage, which required a two-thirds majority.

Out of the veto-voting skirmish in both houses, the President thus emerged with a 50-50 average, but his record with the Senate alone was not so good. That chamber in one day overrode the President four times and failed on a fifth by only a handful of votes.

More Than 4½ Billion Voted by Congress

Washington, May 29 (AP)—The cost of federal Government has returned to a more than four and one-half billion dollar basis, the Seventieth Congress having appropriated the staggering total of $4,642,293,897.57 to carry on affairs in the next fiscal year.

This exceeded the appropriations for this year by $627,304,961.17.

Of the grand total, $1,388,753,735.53 will go to cover annual fixed charges, such as interest on the public debt, leaving $3,253,540,162.04 for carrying on the active department and agencies, of this $200,936,668.02 represents deficiencies which occurred this year.

The appropriations in the regular supply measures were:

Agriculture, $139,138,793.88.

District of Columbia, $37,625,208.00.

Executive and independent offices, $527,393,111.00.

Interior, $272,656,039.00.

Legislative, $17,746,893.26.

Navy, $362,145,812.00.

State, Justice, Commerce and Labor, $89,820,397.60.

Treasury and Postoffice, $1,061,347,060.00.

War, $398,517,721.50.

First deficiency, $200,936,668.02.

BABY SLAYER APPEALS FOR A PARDON

Appeals for a pardon by the condemned himself and for commutation of sentence to life imprisonment by his counsel have been made to Governor Fuller by Nathan Desatnick of Dorchester, convicted baby slayer, and George R. Stobbs, counsel.

Desatnick, a few weeks ago, was sentenced to death in the electric chair as an accessory in procuring the murder of his five-months-old daughter, "Dolly."

The baby's body was found in Lake Quinsigamond, Worcester, in June, 1927. Desatnick, at his trial, claimed to have given the child to a friend, Harry Balkan, to take to New York, where it was to have been placed to board. The baby was born to Desatnick and Miss Anna Goldberg of Boston four months before they were married.

Governor Fuller has referred the petitions by Desatnick and his counsel to Chairman Frank A. Brooks of the parole board for investigation and report.

MUSSOLINI IN PROTEST ON JUGOSLAV OUTBREAKS

Rome, May 29 (AP)—Premier Mussolini has directed the Italian minister in Belgrade to present a note of protest against recent attacks upon Italian consulates, asking for "urgent satisfaction." The Jugoslav government already has assured the Italian legation that it has given the sternest instructions to police and troops to prevent a repetition of the recent demonstrations and to protect the Italian consulates and private property.

STATE TO MAKE HEALTH SURVEY IN LAWRENCE

To determine the amount of sickness in an industrial community, a comprehensive survey of Lawrence will be made starting next Monday by the State Health Department.

The findings will be compared with a study made last year in Winchester, a residential community, and in Shelburne Falls, a rural center.

The survey is under the direction of Dr. Herbert L. Lombard. It will continue throughout June and be conducted by 17 field workers. A questionnaire will be sent out on nationality, occupation, kind and length of illness during the year, method of treatment and the history of the seven common communicable diseases for all persons under 20 years of age.

A feature will be the finding out how many persons are ill who do not consult physicians and what type of individuals consult "quacks." An effort will be made to discover whether girls who go into industry as soon as they are of age are more or less healthy than those who continue to go to school.

Dr. Lombard stressed the point that the survey is being conducted wholly for statistical purposes. He said there will be no attempt made to pry into private affairs, sanitary conditions of homes, physical examinations or the administering of baths.

Both are GOODYEAR both are made of SUPERTWIST

You are reading a lot about "tired tires" nowadays—tires that come to a sad and early end because they are not built for sustained flexibility and resiliency. Such tires, like tired athletes, falter under the strain, and quickly succumb to the killing pace.

—That is because they are not built with Goodyear SUPERTWIST, the resilient cords that have the far-extra stretching quality by which they absorb every bump and go right on, ready for more, adding tremendously to comfort and mileage.

SUPERTWIST defies flexing strain. It is a Goodyear creation and is used exclusively by Goodyear. The two tires shown on this page are built with it—tires that give you an additional 10% to 25% mileage which "tired tires" fail to deliver. See the prices listed below—then consider the added saving in the delivery of every mile you pay for.

INVITATION

Any of the dealers listed below will gladly give you a SUPERTWIST demonstration by which you can actually see how it adds to mileage

Safety Essay Honors Go to Boy of 12

By Frank A Goodwin

Highway Safety Editor Boston Evening American and Former Registrar of Motor Vehicles for Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

J. Howard Luce, an alert, bright-eyed lad of twelve, pupil in the eighth grade at Elihu Greenwood school in Hyde Park, won first honors in the safety essay contest in the Boston public schools.

Of the 50,000 essays submitted, a board of judges made up of newspaper men selected Luce's essay as the best and most constructive treatment of the subject of highway safety.

The judges awarded second honors to Lawrence P. Dowd, 18, pupil in South Boston high school; third to John J. McAuliffe, 16, also a pupil in South Boston high school, fourth honors to Anna Kosak of Charlestown high; fifth honors to Margaret Waddell, 14, eighth grade, Warren school, Charlestown, and sixth honors to Anna Pollack, 13, eighth grade, Phillips Brooks school, Dorchester.

Twelve pupils won honorable mention and the papers of 94 others received special mention. The contest was one of the most notable and helpful ever given in this part of the country.

It was conducted under the joint auspices of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, the Boston Automobile Club, which is the Greater Boston branch of the American Automobile Association, and the Boston school authorities.

FINELY WRITTEN

Lawrence Dowd, winner of second place, had the finest essay from a literary standpoint. He treated his subject masterfully, but his views and recommendations were far more limited than those in the simpler and more direct essay written by Luce, his 12-year-old competitor from Hyde Park.

McAuliffe's essay, based on an imaginary interview with a silent policeman and describing the accidents and near accidents the latter had seen in his dreary vigil, was the most ingenious treatment. Also McAuliffe coined the best slogan.

Howard Luce's teacher, Miss Agnes Barry, assistant to Headmaster Kelley at Elihu Greenwood school, felt as proud as he and his parents. Howard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Luce of 16 Hilton st., Hyde Park. Howard's father is in the real estate and insurance business. He owns a car. Howard's mother and sister were graduated from Elihu Greenwood school. He says he always plays safe, but that he never expected to win in the contest. He says his ambition is to go to Annapolis.

SAFETY EMPHASIZED.

Jeremiah E. Burke, superintendent of Boston public schools, sent a letter to all principals describing the purpose and conditions of the contest. Under the iron clad rule of the Boston school authorities no prizes could be awarded.

Under the instructions all teachers emphasized the subject of safety during the first two weeks in March. On the third week pupils were urged to discuss safety and the safety essay project with their families and associates. The essays were written in the last week of March. The school committee stipulated that representatives from the Boston newspapers act as judges.

The judges were: Charles F. Marden, automobile editor, Boston Transcript; Bert Ford, Boston Evening American; Tully A. Nettleton, Christian Science Monitor; Leo Shapiro, Boston Globe, and Parker Morrell, Boston Herald-Traveler.

On Saturday the six winners will be given an auto trip through Lexington and Concord to view the historic shrines and will be given a luncheon at Wayside Inn. Later they will be presented to Governor Fuller, who will give them State pins.

The pupils whose essays received honorable mention follow:

Josephine Brayton, 13, Henry L. Pierce school; Charles Brenner, 14, Public Latin; Francis Dooley, Francis Parkman; Donald B. Edmonston, 18, Brighton high; Grenaldine Goddard, Francis Parkman; Estelle Landey, 16, Brighton high; Helen Loitherstein, E. P. Tileston; Louise B. Nolan, 16, Hyde Park high. William O'Toole, 13, Thomas J. Kenny; Katherine Sheerin, Memorial high; Martha C. Schubauth, 17, Girls' high; Joseph P. Smith, 12, Warren school.

WHOLE STAFF AT MET BUY INSURANCE

Next time you go to the Metropolitan Theater, every one of the large staff that caters to your comfort and entertainment will be a holder of a $10,000 accident insurance policy issued by the Boston Evening American at ONE DOLLAR, as a part of this paper's drive for public safety.

The entire force at this theater, 150 of them, headed by G. L. McCurdy, managing director, applied for the Boston Evening American's remarkable $10,000 accident insurance policy for ONE DOLLAR.

"The fact that each of our employes is protected against the unexpected gives me a feeling of intense satisfaction," said McCurdy. "The offer of $10,000 insurance against accident for a whole year at only $1 is too valuable to ignore. There have been many campaigns in the interest of public safety, all of which deserve credit, but I have yet to see one with so practical a twist as this. In my opinion, every large employer who has the interests of his staff at heart should urge all of his employes to take advantage of it."

The Boston Evening American's plan to distribute one million $10,000 accident insurance policies to the people of New England at only one dollar is in fact without precedent in this part of the country. Every cent of the reader's one dollar registration fee goes to the insurance company. All additional expenses are borne by this paper. This paper distributes the policies solely and strictly in the spirit of its determination to reduce the suffering and want that result from accident to which the public is continually exposed in modern daily life.

The policies are issued purely as an offer of the best and most liberal, iron-clad insurance the Boston Evening American has been able to discover. Each policy is underwritten by the North American Accident Insurance Company.

There are no strings attached to the offer. There is nothing more to pay. You don't have to subscribe to this or any other paper. You don't have to take a physical examination. There is no red tape. In the event of death or serious injury through accident as stipulated in the policy, you or your beneficiaries don't have to concern yourselves with the question: "Whose fault was it?"

Boys, Girls Divide First 6 Safety Honors

First six honors in the safety essay contest for Boston school pupils were divided evenly between boys and girls, with the boys having somewhat the best of it at that. The first three honors went to the boys, and fourth, fifth and sixth honors were awarded to girls. School authorities were delighted with the excellence of the essays and the ideas they evolved.

STEALS GIRL, 7; HURLS HER DEAD BODY ON PORCH

Toledo, O., May 29 (AP)—A man early today entered the home of Alex Sielagowski here and took Dorothy, aged 7, from the bed where she was sleeping with her three sisters, carried her to his automobile, attacked and killed her.

Twenty minutes later he threw the body on the porch at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Felix Dobrzeniecki, a few doors from the child's home.

Police immediately started search for a "small man in a black suit," whom Sielagowski said he saw drive away from in front of the home a few minutes after the disappearance of Dorothy. Sielagowski said he also saw a small covered auto truck stop in front of the home.

The child's father and two brothers were asleep in a front bedroom. Police said the slayer apparently was acquainted with the Sielagowski home as entrance was gained through a back door, which was unlocked. Creeping up the stairway, the man seized the child clad only in her night dress.

A sister, Stella, was awakened by the man and cried, "They're taking Dorothy away."

The father said that about 20 minutes after the child was abducted he saw two automobiles drive up in front of the Dobrzeniecki home. He thought nothing of it and immediately left for police headquarters. Returning with officers, he noticed a huddled figure on the Dobrzeniecki porch and investigating found the body of his child.

The coroner rendered a verdict of death by strangulation. The coroner said the child had been attacked. The father is employed in a factory and told police he had several known enemies.

A home is a man's greatest asset! Do you own yours? If not, now is the time to buy. You'll find scores of sound values listed today in the real estate columns of the Classified Ads.

RAIN STICKING CLOSE, LIKE RELATIVES

The thousands of persons whose Memorial Day program includes visits to cemeteries and summer resorts with other outdoor activities, will no doubt be interested to learn that more rain is probable.

Although this is the second week of rainy weather, Meteorologist Loveland today could see no prospect of fair weather. Local conditions are common to the entire country east of the Mississippi, with storms centered in Quebec, Michigan and Texas.

As to the cause of the continued dampness, the best that could be obtained from the weather bureau, was the somewhat unsatisfactory statement that it rains because it rains. The forecast for Boston and vicinity:

Partly cloudy with some showers late tonight or Wednesday; not much change in temperature; gentle shifting winds.

The mercury reached 71 at 1 o'clock today, the highest it has climbed this month.

NYE DENOUNCES OIL LEASES AS MASTER STEAL

Washington, May 29 (AP)—Bristling with pungent terms of denunciation of the naval oil leases and the Continental Trading Company deal, a report supplemental to that approved yesterday by the Teapot Dome Committee was filed today by Senator Nye (Rep.) of North Dakota, chairman.

It went into the record with the report of Senator Walsh (Dem.) of Montana, who prosecuted the oil investigations. Walsh's findings characterized Robert W. Stewart, Harry F. Sinclair, H. M. Blackmer and James E. O'Neil as "conspirators" and denounced the entire deal as a "contemptible private steal."

"Never has the world known a case involving a degree of fraud, quite evident bribery, thievery, conspiracy and corruption to compare with what has come to be known as the Teapot Dome-Elk Hills-Continental Trading Company case," the Nye report said.

"The leases involved are estimated to have been worth not less than $500,000,000, and were consummated, to use the language of the United States Supreme Court, 'by conspiracy, corruption and fraud.'

BETRAYAL OF TRUST.

"The investigation has uncovered the slimiest of slimy trails beaten by privilege. It has shown, let us hope, privilege at its worst.

"The trail is one of dishonesty, greed, violation of law, secrecy, concealment, evasion, falsehood and cunning.

"It is a trail of betrayals by trusted and presumably honorable men—betrayals of a government, of certain business interests and of people who trusted and honored them. It is a trail showing a flagrant degree of the exercise of political power and influence, and the power and influence of great wealth upon individuals and political parties. It is a trail of despoilers and schemers far more dangerous to the well being of our nation and our democracy than all those who have been deported from our shores in all time as undesirable citizens. In the end, the story is one of the crushing of brilliant careers when finally the light was played upon those who hatched those unhealthy schemes born in darkness.

FLAYS ACQUITTALS.

"The acquittal verdicts in the Fall-Doherty and the Fall-Sinclair trials have been considered most deplorable failures of justice on every side, except only the side of privilege. These failures have been of such nature as to prove the need for such changes in court procedure that will make advantage no more easily available to the criminal of great means than to the offender who comes out of the most lowly classes.'

"Justice has been proven not a thing to be applied to and enjoyed by all alike, but instead a commodity to be bought and otherwise influenced by wealth.

"Able lawyers in the Congress and out would contribute mightily to the cause of our democracy if they would devote themselves to such legislation as would make justice reach out one and all alike."

"LITTLE SINS" By KATHARINE BRUSH

A Story of Gay Life and a Battle of Hearts

CHAPTER 26

MR. AND MRS. ALAN POMEROY returned to New York on the first day of October, and pending the establishment of what the bride's mother was pleased to refer to as a "dear little nest of their own," stayed with the Leonards. Three feverish weeks. A mad kaleidoscope of parties, presents, callers, congratulations, conferences. A nightmare of excelsior, tissue paper, doorbells, telephone bells, flowers, voices, kisses. A meaninglessness.

Incidents, just a few, stood out sharply for Gay.

There was that first difficult hour with her parents. They were glad; they kept saying they were glad and proud and happy, smiling with honest fondness upon Alan. Yet her father cleared his throat noticeably often, and her mother cried a little, bleakly. "Not to have been with you—" she sighed several times. And once, "Oh, but I always planned such a beautiful big wedding—"

There was the peculiar penetration in the brown, shellrimmed eyes of Alan's friend, Steve Harker, when he said, "He's the salt of the earth, Gay. And don't you ever forget it."

There was the 16-year-old boy, someone's visiting cousin, who addressed her politely as "Ma'am," at the Tom Hinchley's dance.

There was the evening when her father told her, very simply and unemotionally, that the Street, that Indian giver, had taken back his fortune. Practically all of it. He had lost a quarter-million early in the summer, and in a desperate effort to recoup, had thrown away the rest. The house would have to be sold, of course, and the cars. Perhaps now that she was fixed they would leave New York, her mother and he. He didn't know yet. It all depended. He had heard of something in Chicago . . . a chance to begin again. . . .

There was a big package containing a silver cocktail set, tray and shaker and 12 goblets. "Mr. Jerome Davis," said the card. Gay was alone when she opened it. She tore the card into very wee pieces, and when she showed the gift to Alan later, said, "From a girl I went to school with. Isn't it stunning?"

Alan's father was a gruff bass voice encased in 240 pounds of dynamic clay. He had a quantity of very white hair which his fingers kept in perpetual revolt, a red face with tiny threadlike redder veins on the cheek bones, and a guffaw that seemed to quiver walls and windows. He was a widower. He was a business wizard. And he was a darling.

Gay liked him immensely, not the least of her reasons being the indisputable fact that he was delighted with her. She was, he maintained, precisely the sort of daughter he'd always wanted. Pretty as a picture, and sweet, and "normal, thank God!" (This to the derogation of his other daughter-by-marriage, who ran an antique shop off Washington sq., and, although she was Mrs. Julian M. Pomeroy, junior, and had been for three or four years, persisted in calling herself Naomi Nardin—and looking it.)

Gay had a trick of treating older people, when she liked them, as if they were her contemporaries. "It must be bad enough to be old," she opined, "without everyone's rubbing it in all the time." . . . She flattered Mr. Pomeroy, and cried him down whenever he spoke of himself as aged. She called him by his two first initials, criticized his cravats, scolded him, bossed him, made much of him. To this treatment he responded with all the verve of a sixty-year-old gentleman whose spirit is still sixteen. He became at once a fond father, famous admirer and willing slave.

"You won't need to look for a place to live," Pomeroy pere had informed them on their first day back. "I've got your home all picked out for you. Ready in two or three weeks now."

He was gleefully mysterious about it. He would answer no questions, not a one. They were to wait, and in due time they would see. . . .

They waited with impatience and some trepidation for eighteen days. "Suppose it isn't what we want?" Gay demanded every day of Alan. Every day she said, "Oh, he ought to consult us! How does he know what part of town I want to live in, or what kind of apartment I have in mind?" Every day she threatened to tell him that he was awfully, awfully kind, but honestly, they'd rather find a place for themselves. . . . Possibly she would have done so had not Alan insisted that thus to spoil his cherished surprise would almost break the heart of Pomeroy pere.

On the afternoon of the nineteenth day suspense abruptly ended. Mr. Pomeroy appeared in his car at the Leonard residence, gathered up Gay and Alan and Mrs. Leonard, and drove them direct to a lofty building on East Fifty-seventh st.

"All out!" he boomed.

They got out, and stood on the sidewalk, gazing with satisfaction at the buff stone facade, at the Florentine lobby glowing softly behind the plate glass doors.

"Like the looks of it?" asked Mr. Pomeroy. "Think you'd like to live here?"

They did.

"Think you'd like to live up high?"

Excited as a small boy circus-bound, and chuckling to himself, Mr. Pomeroy led them inside. Past a doorman who saluted deferentially, past the two elevators he led them, and down a corridor to a third elevator marked "Private."

"In we go!" cried Mr. Pomeroy.

In they went, and were lifted 15 stories.

At approximately the sixth story Mr. Pomeroy's secret exploded from him: he was altogether incapable of containing it an instant longer. "It's not an apartment!" he roared joyously. "It's a bungalow! Up on the roof! A pent-house—that's what they call 'em. Wait'll you see—"

A delightful one-story house, crouching under the clouds. A

WAITS 15 YEARS ONLY TO SEE DEATH ROB HIM

New Bedford Thrills as Hearst Trophies Are Given School Team

GIRL SPONSORS JUBILANT OVER SILVER SHIELD

Lieut. Edna Birtwistle, Lieut. Mildred Sullivan, Battalion Capt. Barbara Hersey and Lieut. Hazel Ricketson of the New Bedford high school, the sponsors, were as happy as could be when the William Randolph Hearst silver shield was awarded the school's rifle team for its prowess in the recent rifle competitions.

SILVER MEDAL GIVEN MARKSMEN FOR PROWESS

The individual silver medals awarded by Mr. Hearst to members of winning teams were pinned on the breasts of the New Bedford high school victors by Capt. L. B. Rock of the Boston Evening American, as personal representative for the donor of the trophies.

WIFE DIES ON WAY TO JOIN HIM

Fifteen years ago in Russia Max Braslawskaja drew his wife into his arms and kissed her good-by.

"I'm off to America, Golda," he said. "In America there is money to be made. Take care of Paula. I will make money fast and send for you as soon as I can."

So Max Braslawskaja came to America, leaving his wife behind. His wife and his little girl, Paula. He landed in New York and came to Massachusetts and settled in Chelsea, a pioneer in quest of his family's welfare and happiness.

He settled down to a steady job in a shop. He made a little money, he lived cheaply, he laid by all he could. Always he wrote home to his wife. Came a lean year and the little money that Max had put by was spent for bread for his mouth—that little left after he had sent home the few dollars upon which his wife and child existed.

TEN YEARS PASS.

Before Max Braslawskaja realized it, 10 years in a new country were behind him and his wife was not yet with him. But she was brave.

"I know you will make the money soon to send for me," she wrote. And Max worked harder.

And Paula, who had been a little girl, married and came to this country with her husband. The three made their home at 132 Walnut ave., Chelsea, and Max was happy for a while. But he wanted his wife. The years were creeping on him. He was nearly 60.

He gathered together enough to buy a little shop.

"I have a store now," he wrote home to Golda in Russia. "I will be making money and can send for you."

CABLES SHE'S COMING.

He did. He made money. A few weeks ago, at the age of 60, Max sent the money for Golda's passage. He had been 15 years in this country and he had not seen his wife in all that time.

There came a cable from Russia.

"I will be on the Rotterdam in New York, May 23."

So Max arrayed himself in new clothes and with Paula went to New York to meet the S. S. Rotterdam upon which sailed Max's wife. He bought some flowers. "She will be glad," he said.

The two stood on the pier when the Rotterdam came up the East river and swung into her dock. Max was young again for a few minutes, his heart leaping, youth shining in his eyes.

SO SHE COMES HOME.

Down the gang plank came the passengers. More passengers. And more.

"I do not see her," said Max.

"Nor I," said Paula.

No more passengers came. They went to the office of the steamship company.

"My wife was on the boat. She did not come," said Max.

"Your wife died on the voyage over," they told him.

So, after waiting 15 years, Max met his wife in a New York morgue. She will come home Saturday to the home they made for her in Chelsea. She will be buried Sunday.

The cause of her death is undetermined, but Max has started a police investigation in New York in the belief she may have been a victim of foul play.

BOARD TO RULE ON TREMONT ST. ROUTE

The board of street commissioners took under advisement today a petition of the school committee to allow the Boston High School Cadets to parade next Friday over a route which includes Tremont st., from Boylston to Park.

Store representatives and fire insurance companies opposed the petition on the ground that the parade in Tremont st. would hurt business, tie up traffic and result in great fire hazard.

Former Mayor James M. Curley, who has announced his candidacy for the next election, told the commission that if they ruled against the use of Tremont st. for such a parade he would do his best to have the ruling revoked in 1930.

Among others favoring the petition were Judge Edward L. Logan and Gen. Charles H. Cole.

'TAKES RAP' IN HARVARD RAID

Richard H. Evans today "took the rap" for foxy Fox Club members of Harvard.

He was fined $200 in East Cambridge District Court for keeping and exposing liquor for sale, as the result of a raid by the Cambridge liquor squad May 19. At the time of the raid Evans, steward at the club, was not arrested.

Lunch time was in full swing and Harvard undergraduates were waiting for their highballs when the officers stepped in. They found a miniature bar and all the necessaies in the way of bottled liquor of high quality.

6 SHAKEN WHEN TROLLEY CRASHES INTO A TRUCK

Six passengers were shaken and the front vestibule of an outbound Elevated car was crushed in today when the trolley crashed into the rear end of a truck operated by Jeremiah Cohen of Belmont st., Everett, on Broadway, Everett. The truck had started across the Revere Beach parkway when the automatic signal light changed and Cohen stopped. The trolley, operated by Michael J. Farrell of Bowers ave., Somerville, was following. Although the vestibule windows of the trolley were broken, Farrell escaped injury.

BRICKLEY SENT TO ISLAND TO TOIL OUTDOORS

Charles E. Brickley, former Harvard football star, serving a 15-month sentence on bucketshop charges, was today transferred from Charles st. jail to Deer Island because he preferred outdoor work.

The transfer was made by Commissioner of Correction Sanford Bates and with the approval of Dist. Atty. William J. Foley.

In announcing the change Commissioner Bates said Brickley requested he be given an opportunity to perform his prison labor outdoors. There being no reason for refusal, his plea was granted.

The former athlete was sentenced on charges of conducting a bucketshop and larceny from a customer.

Food Pirates in City Are Forced to Flee

By DR. P. H. MULLOWNEY,
Director of Hearst Health Laboratory

Seizure of about 50 pounds of chicken meat which had been cut up for sale as chicken for fricassee, was made by city health inspectors who accompanied me Saturday afternoon on an inspection tour of every sidewalk stand, pushcart and pedlar's wagon in the downtown market.

Apparently alarmed by the exposure of unlawful practices, the sidewalk vendors otherwise had good, wholesome food for sale, as was revealed by our search for decomposed and unfit foodstuffs.

The public is warned to be very careful in selecting chicken meat which is already cut up and placed on display, as these pieces are oftentimes selected from birds which in their original condition would disclose bruised and unwholesome conditions.

In the evening, at 9 o'clock, another diligent search was made, as intensive as the one made in the afternoon, but no questionable food was found on sale.

Two of the most notorious violators of the food laws have left the market for good.

Reputable merchants are overjoyed that the market is being made safe from the wiles of the food fakers, who were always a thorn in the side of the honest trader. Sharp practices by a small number cast a bad name on the whole market district.

Remember, always demand a receipt from the sidewalk vendor, unless you know him and have been

WAR VET KILLS HIMSELF WITH FATHER'S GUN

Using his father's service revolver, Patrick Connelly, 27, war veteran and son of Patrolman Stephen T. Connelly, Waltham police chauffeur, shot and killed himself today in the garage of the Connelly home in Summer ave., Waltham.

They told Medical Examiner George L. West that the son, employed by a Weston milk dealer, had made his delivery trip early today and then returned home.

He ate breakfast in an apparently normal mood and left the table casually. A few minutes later the family was startled by the sound of a shot in the garage.

Connelly was found on the garage floor with a bullet through his head and the revolver of his father, whose day off it was, lying near by.

Medical Examiner West pronounced the case one of suicide.

WOMAN IN COMA FOUR MONTHS IS DEAD

Worcester, May 29—In a coma that has baffled medical science for four months, Mrs. Isabelle G. Hunt, 50, wife of Associate Medical Examiner Ernest L. Hunt, died today in Worcester City Hospital.

The disease of which she was a victim is believed to be some strange form of sleeping sickness.

She was taken ill last Christmas and was unconscious for short periods. She entered the hospital and on February 2 lapsed into the coma from which she did not emerge. Dr. Hunt, who is attached to the hospital staff, was in almost constant attendance upon her during her illness.

In an effort to determine the nature of the disease, a New York specialist will view the body.

The deceased was the mother of three daughters, one of whom is a student at Simmons College.

PUPILS NEAR FALLING TREE

Scores of school children had just passed the point today when an old English elm in Amory st., Cambridge, one of the oldest trees in the city, toppled to the street carrying down telephone and telegraph wires.

The tree stood only a block from the Felton School, whose pupils had departed the institution less than half an hour before the crash came.

In its fall, the big tree crashed through a fence fronting the house at 147 Amory st., on the opposite side of the thoroughfare.

City Councillor Harry Mohr will present to the City Council tonight an order that the Park Department make an inspection of all trees and destroy those found to have decayed sufficient to constitute a menace.

JEALOUS SUITOR HELD FOR FLOURISHING GUN

Ralph Reynolds of Lynn, who has been keeping company with Myrtle Smileage of Brightwood terrace, Lynn, won't keep company with her for another while because his last meeting with her is alleged to have been with a revolver.

Today in Lynn court, Ralph was held in $1300 on charges of assaulting Myrtle and carrying a revolver.

Myrtle told the court that Ralph, accusing her of intending to meet another chappie, waited outside her place of employment, dragged her to her home and then displayed a revolver. Words were not needed, Myrtle said.

DEFER TRIAL OF SOUTH BOSTON DEATH CASE

Trial of Michael Rocco, alias "Micky the Wise Guy," of the West End, and William F. O'Donnell of Roxbury, on charges in connection with the killing of John J. Donovan of South Boston, was set over today until Monday by Judge Fosdick in Superior Court. The case was to have gone on trial today. Rocco is charged with the murder of Donovan, while O'Donnell is an alleged accessory. Donovan was shot down at A and West Third sts., South Boston, last December 29, while he sat at the wheel of his automobile.

DEDHAM CHURCH SEXTON WINS $2650 VERDICT

A Supreme Court decision, filed at Dedham today, awards John F. Riley, sexton of St. Mary's Church of that town, $2650, with interest from May 10, '24, in his suit against James R. Flannigan and others. Riley sued for $6000, the defendant being executor of the will of the Rev. John H. Fleming, former pastor of St. Mary's Church, as recompense for his services as traveling companion to the priest. The suit was referred to an auditor, whose report was disallowed by Judge John McLaughlin of the Superior Court. Riley then appealed to the Supreme Court on exceptions.

MARION DAVIES TRIUMPHS AS "THE PATSY"

By LEO GAFFNEY

"The Patsy" of Marion Davies, now at Loew's State, is the heartiest little character this eminent screen comedienne has ever enacted. The picture, so named from Barry Connors' sparkling stage piece, was directed by King Vidor, whose handling of "The Big Parade" and "The Crowd" has established him as the film genius of the day.

Ralph Spence, ace of flip crackers, wrote the titles; Agnes Christine Johnson, who has done some of the films' best scenarios, made the continuity, and a supporting cast that seems almost inspired adds finishing touches to a well-nigh flawlessly constructed comedy.

As a film treatment of the Great American Home "The Patsy" is no less perfect than "The Potters." There is "Pa," in the splendid person of Del Henderson, who simply cannot be "swell"; there is "Ma", true to the life, by Marie Dressler, who tries so desperately to be "nice" everywhere but at home; there is the "big sister," played by Jane Winton, who gets all the breaks, and there is the "kid sister" who does not get them, Marion Davies—the Patsy.

It is a disturbed and therefore orthodox household that King Vidor develops. It looks like a place where everything ought to be comfortable, but family bickering turns it into an armed camp. "Ma" is a large person, fussy and bossy; "Pa" is so hopelessly one of the "plain people" that you feel sorry for him; Big Sister is a cold and imperious beauty who has "the fellows," and The Patsy is just out of luck all around.

How the little Cinderella develops "personality" and captures the town's most desirable bachelor—in spite of all odds—is the substance of the story.

If Marion Davies had labored for years in preparation for her role she couldn't have hit it off any better. She has the natural knack of the comic. Sometimes she uses the trick of putting on a different hat, again a slight facial quirk or a sudden widening of the eyes and she seems to be a totally different person. In one scene she does a series of her famous "imitations" that nearly convulse the house. She can actually "make faces" and closely resemble in turn, Mae Murray, Lillian Gish and Pola Negri.

Under the spell of Vidor all members of the cast fairly outdo themselves. Marie Dressler is a paragon of the managing mama, and Lawrence Gray as the gayest of the town's young bloods turns in a performance that he can remember for the rest of his life.

Make no mistake about it, there is no better "high comedy" this season than "The Patsy."

FINE PROGRAM AT NORUMBEGA

The Flying Melzoras, a quintet of daring aerialists, won hearty applause as the stellar outdoor attraction offered at Norumbega Park this week. These five persons performed some almost incredible feats high in the air of the natural amphitheater.

Somersaults, double somersaults, triple somersaults and "full twisters" were offered by this group.

The program at the open-air theater was also warmly received. Vaudeville acts of high order and a feature photoplay made up that program.

"The Voice of Norumbega" made its debut, too. Horns located at various points in the park broadcast all necessary announcements, and a special concert was also broadcast.

The midway, with its games, swings, thrills and fun attracted many. The Ferris wheel, situated on the highest point of land in the park was in motion all the time.

Tropical Film Role for Anna Nillson

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

LOS ANGELES, May 29—The fractured hip of Anna Q. Nilsson that caused her so much misery and a loss of several good jobs, is expected to be healed by July 2. On that day Anna will report for work at the F. B. O. studios for "Tropical Madness," a drama in which she will not have to ride horseback. You couldn't get her on a horse again for the best job in Hollywood.

It's interesting to know that Robert Vignola, who was slated by William Le Baron to direct "The Life of Mussolini," will handle the megaphone in "Tropical Madness." Bob was all set and ready to go to his native Italy, but Mussolini apparently had a change of heart and decided not to have his life filmed.

These national characters have to be careful. I don't know just what did happen, but I do know F. B. O. waited months to get Il Duce's approval of the scenario. It never came, so now Bob is starting to work on something else.

I HAD supposed that Pawnee Bill, Indian scout and famous frontiersman, had been gathered to his fathers along with Buffalo Bill and other heroic characters of the West. Pawnee Bill is still alive, vigorous and hearty in spite of his 60-odd years. Moreover, he is about to be starred in "Heroes on Horseback," a Western epic to be made by the Globe Film Company.

Once completed, the Pawnee Bill number will be roadshowed with our hero himself appearing in the prologue. The company very modestly asserts "Heroes on Horseback" is sure to be another "Covered Wagon." They have plenty of money 'tis also said.

FREE-LANCING, I have oft repeated, is a game only for players who are in demand. Marion Nixon proved that when she left Universal one day and signed with Richard Barthelmess as his leading lady in "Out of the Ruins" the next. "Out of the Ruins," as you will remember, is the Cosmopolitan story by Phillip Gibbs, and is to be directed by John Francis Dillon.

Little Miss Nixon is not the type of other Barthelmess leading ladies and therefore interesting. Speaking of free-lance players, Kathleen Key is about to do a movietone for Fox. Kathleen is much elated over this chance, since it is Fox's first effort to present a sketch.

Evelyn Brent and Dorothy Herzog returned this morning from their visit in New York. We leave for the big town Saturday and then to Houston to the Democratic convention. CLEVELAND is going to have a chance to look at Adolphe Menjou's bride and to congratulate the debonaire actor on his choice in person. After 12 years' absence from his home town, Menjou is going to stop in Cleveland on his way home to Hollywood. JIMMY STARR, who writes a motion picture column for one of the local papers, has been receiving congratulations. Jimmy wrote some of the dialogue and all the titles for "The Lion and the Mouse." The other night when I saw him in Henry's eating his usual midnight scrambled eggs and bacon he told me that, as a pal, I am a hardboiled critic. I never even mentioned him in my review. I didn't mean to overlook Jimmy, because his titles are really good.

"CRADLE SONG" IS PRESENTED AT HOLLIS

"The Cradle Song," most popular play in Eva Le Gallienne's New York Civic Repertory, was given last night as the initial offering of her second and final week at the Hollis. The principal characters were the same as seen here last year. The play, translated from the Spanish of Gregorio and Maria Martinez Sierra, is a lovely little study of character in a convent of Dominican nuns. When a nameless waif of a baby is abandoned at the gates the good sisters, with maternal instincts, a-throb, take it in and rear it in the sweet and tranquil atmosphere of the cloister.

Eva Le Galliene

Years later, with the child grown to young womanhood, there comes the inevitable time when the girl must leave her convent home and marry. The wrench the nuns feel at parting with the child that each has so poignantly regarded as her own, is touchingly and beautifully portrayed.

Miss Le Gallienne plays Sister Joanna of the Cross, to whom is entrusted the main responsibility of bringing up the child. Other principal characters are enacted by Alma Kruger as the mild Mother Superior; Leona Roberts as an ascetic Vicaress, and Josephine Hutchinson as the adopted girl.

"The Cradle Song" will be given again on Wednesday night and on Friday matinee.

"THE ENEMY" AT ORPHEUM

"The Enemy," feature photoplay at Loew's Orpheum Theater this week, presents Lillian Gish in the star role of the tragic Pauli. It is an exciting story of the havoc of war hatreds and hysteria, laid in Austria, and based on Channing Pollock's famous stage success.

Ralph Forbes plays the leading male role, and the cast includes Ralph Emerson, Frank Currier, Polly Moran, Karl Dane, Fritzi Ridgeway and George Fawcett.

The new film was produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and directed by Fred Niblo of "Ben-Hur" fame.

Lieut. Gitz Rice and his "Northwest Mounties" are headliners on the vaudeville bill. They offer a novel and entertaining act of songs and dances. "Marie," petite Canadienne, contributes to the success of the act.

A clever ventriloquial act, entitled "The Operation," is presented by Edgar Bergen and Company, with Christine Chadwell; while Will J. Kennedy and Company amuse with a comedy sketch called, "Pinch Me."

THRONGS FILL "BIG TOP" AS CIRCUS OPENS

The Sells-Floto Circus opened at the Andrew Square Grounds with the usual throng of children and parents.

The familiar features were back with the show and once more earned the thunderous applause of the vast crowd. Miss Erma Ward was seen in a remarkable display of endurance, doing a full somersault in the air over 100 times, and George Hanneford, the riding comedian, again was a feature of the bill. Hanneford's brilliant acrobatic riding, coupled with comedy, brought rounds of applause.

Peter Taylor, wild animal trainer, gave a fine exhibition with Siberian tigers and African lions.

A tumbling act by the Ten Tangiers, Arabian acrobats, was another feature of the opening performance.

An admirable display of horses, 12 sorrel, 11 white and nine black, and elephants who performed, with many other animals trained to perfection, interested all.

While the rain handicapped the chariot race, jockey race and fox hunt, nevertheless many thrills were packed into these performances.

The array of funny and tumbling clowns provided the big kick for the children. They continually paraded around the tent, keeping the crowd roaring with laughter. The aerial performers headed by the Ward family of trapeze stars concluded the performance.

"SAILORS' WIVES" FILM AT SCOLLAY SQUARE

While there is nothing nautical about "Sailors' Wives," the new film at the Scollay Square Olympia, there does seem to be something naughty about it.

It is about a young girl, one of the "ultra moderns," who embarks on a series of wild parties. Because she has been told she is going blind she takes to the reckless life in order to "live" as much as possible before the promised blindness shall arrive.

Mary Astor, sweet and winsome, plays the girl. And as the idea of Mary Astor and the wild life is hardly coincidental there is every hope that all will come well when Lloyd Hughes really makes up his mind to do something about it.

Nevertheless, he is very nearly too late, for the beauty shoots herself, but wait! Not fatally. And the happy ending finds the customary clinch and fadeout.

The Scollay also offers its usual array of diverting talent in the vaudeville bill.

TREMONT—"Fast Company," a comedy of baseball players and their mixed joys and anguish. Typically Cohanesque.

WILBUR — Irene Bordoni in "Paris." Chic comedy, with several intriguing songs by Miss Bordoni.

COPLEY—"He Walked in Her Sleep," a farce by Norman Cannon, with Mr. Cannon taking part.

HOLLIS—Eva Le Gallienne in a group of plays. Admirable acting by the New York Civic Repertory Company.

ST. JAMES—"Broadway," a stirring drama of night life, with bootlegging and murder tossed in for good measure.

TOM MIX TO VISIT HUB

Tom Mix, the cowboy star of the films, is coming to Boston "in person." Next Monday morning he is due to arrive at the South Station with his famous black horse, Tony, and an entourage of hard-riding and rope-slinging "busters."

Tom Mix

The whole bunch will play an engagement all next week at the Keith-Albee Boston. The invaders will be met and surrounded at the station by a delegation of Boy Scouts. Scout Mix will be presented with an honorary membership in the Boston organization and the party will then proceed to various other welcoming demonstrations.

The next day the world's best-dressed cowboy will meet Mayor Nichols and present him with a real 10-gallon hat, ornamented with rattlesnake skin and studded with horseshoe nails from Tony's select wardrobe. He will arrive at City Hall on horseback. Looks like a large reception!

GOOD VAUDEVILLE IS SEEN AT KEITH'S

Charlotte Greenwood entertained and thrilled the audience at Keith's last night with her farcical skit, "The Morning Bath."

Pantomime had a clever examplar in Manuel Vega. He opened with a juggling act, tugged with a cannon ball and then kicked it off the stage. His wrestling act with a dummy convulsed the spectators.

Hamtree Harrington with Cora Green, in "Nobody's Gal"; George McKay and Ollie Ardine in "Just From Abroad"; Don Cummings, the roper; Vanlane and Veronica, and Lohse and Nan Sterling in "Frolicsome Follies" were also on the bill.

"ABIE'S IRISH ROSE" AGAIN IN BOSTON

Again, and still going strong after six years, "Abie's Irish Rose," enigmatic perennial of the American stage, is playing a limited engagement at the Plymouth.

Just as funny, just as dramatic, just as simple is the play that won for Anne Nichols, "chorus-girl playwright," the fortune that has smiled upon her since she "foisted the failure" on the public in 1922.

Patricia Quinn

The simple story of a young Jewish lad's love for a sweet colleen, transplanted to New York, was unfolded with the same emphasis and precision that has marked its success through the successive months and years that has seen nearly 3000 performances.

The work of unfolding the story is well handled by Andrew Mack, popular Irish singing comedian who starred for many years as head of his own company. Alfred White, the original Solomon Levy; Bernard Gorcey, Patricia Quinn, Ida Kramer, Harold Shubert, Jack Bertin and Harold Bradley—all play most important parts.

The last chance—it seems—to see "Abie's Irish, Rose" in person would be to witness the comedy drama during its present stay in the Hub.

A first night audience wished the play well, according to the rounds of applause that greeted every situation.

ARGONNE SHOW AGAIN SET FOR TONIGHT

Once again promotor Eddie Mack cames up amiling after the rain.

Undismayed by the wretched weather of the past week, which once again forced him to postpone the opening of the outdoor boxing season at Braves Field, the Argonne A. A. promotor now looks forward to finally staging his big double wind-up event tonight.

And in spite of the numerous postponements, the interest in the middleweight title fight between Arthur Flynn of Lawrence and George "Wop" Manolian of Dorchester and the light heavyweight struggle between Larry Gaines, Canadian champion, and Tom Kirby of Roxbury, indicates that if there is ever a break in the weather Hub fans will avail themselves of the opportunity of witnessing this much discussed show.

All the principals in the show had weighed in yesterday and were under the prescribed weight at the office of the boxing commission.

Fortunately all the principals in the double feature event were able to remain in the Hub for another day, although Larry Gaines, who has a date in Kansas City late this week, is showing some signs of nervousness.

Both Flynn and Manolian, who will clash in that middleweight championship event for which Hub fans have waited so long, were both under the 160 pound limit, but it is expected that they will be forced to do light training to keep down to the necessary poundage.

PURPLE NINE SLIGHT FAVORITE OVER B. C.

By JOHN B. GILLOOLY

Boston College has started its annual Memorial Day crusade to Worcester where Coach Hugh Duffy's Eagle ball nine meets Holy Cross in the first game of a three game series at Fitton Field, tomorrow afternoon.

For spirit, color and rivalry there are few college games in the country that can match this tussle between the Purple and Eagles. And the stage is set for what will probably be the greatest of all the classics between these rivals.

Boston College marches on Worcester with full confidence of beating Holy Cross. The Crusaders are waiting anxiously at their Mt. St. James camp for the travelers, determined to give B. C. a walloping.

Boston College whipped Holy Cross three times last year and Jack Barry's boys have their hearts set on avenging the B. C. surge.

Boston College's backers began their march on Holy Cross this morning. Every means of conveyance, from bicycles to airplanes, will be heading to Worcester from now until shortly after noon tomorrow.

Coach Hugh Duffy of the local nine will send Hugh McNulty after his fourth straight game against Holy Cross. Hughie set the Purple back three times last spring, a feat never before accomplished by any other college pitcher in history.

McNulty is only a slight kid and hasn't got a world of stuff on the pill. But he uses his head every minute he's in the game.

Jack Barry hasn't made up his mind yet who'll be on the Holy Cross mound. But it's safe to say that Alois Fons will do the twirling for the Purple. Fons has had a great season thus far.

He twirled a no-hit no-run game against Spring Hill and has victories over Fordham, New York University, Georgetown and Harvard to his credit. He was going great guns until the ninth inning of the first Fordham game when he started to slip and lost a ball game to the Gothamites.

Society Gets Jolts at Its Boxing Show

him if he would promote society bouts back in Madison Square Garden. There was a tear in the famous promoter's eye, or maybe it was just the smoke, when he gazed about him.

The number of millionaires present at the show would not have paid Tex's doorman over in New York.

"Well," drawled Tex, "I don't know. But it's a good thing to have these high class people attend boxing shows. It helps the game."

But Tex won't hold any society shows. For it takes too long for members of the elite to catch the spirit of enthusiasm that is instantaneous where the real fight fans gather.

THE first bout (for names of the principles see summary) was nearly over before there was even a murmur. Up until this point, the back door to the ballroom must have been locked. In the third round of the fight, one of the boys landed a blow that resounded through the hall.

A figure in a cap appeared "atta boy," and then sank into his chair as a battery of lorgnettes were turned upon him.

Before the second bout began capped figures moved quietly through the semidarkness of the corners, and soon there was a lively hum of conversation. But not at the ringside. Somehow, those who sat nearest the ring seemed to be watching slow-motion pictures, so quiet did they remain.

It was then the second bout came on. We will tell you the names of the principals, because we can spell them. One was Robert Baker of Roxbury, and the other, Robert O'Connell of South Boston.

It was a fast battle between two boys in the 118 pound class. Both fighters were wild, but they kept swinging, and the crowd began to become animated. There seemed to be a little awakening of the spirit.

• • •

WHEN the third bout ended, something happened that proved that the colonel's lady and Judy O'Grady are not distant relatives. For some uncouth person uttered a noise which sounded very much like "Boo," a favorite expression at regular fights when one wishes to voice his disapproval.

As if a thousand echoes answered all at once, a chorus of "boos" sprung up from all parts of the hall.

"Certainly our crowd did not join in that demonstration," said one matron, with a searching look at her neighbors.

"Oh, yes, it did," we said to ourselves. For 20 of the unshaved could hardly supply the volume that flooded the hall.

It was at this point that we emerged from the trance brought on by the earlier quiet.

"ALL human beings, in jewels or in jail," we philosophized, "are pretty much the same when aroused by what they believe to be unfairness." The language of all classes is "boo," and shaking the sleep from our tired eyes, we began to look around again.

Jack Sharkey, sometime heavyweight champion, it is believed, was there. Jack wore a tuxedo. His hair was slicked back in the manner of a film sheik. Mrs. Hugh Bancroft was there, and viewed the bouts from a box. Mrs. Phillip Saltonstall was there. So was Mrs. Frederick Wadsworth Buck. They were all there. "All Boston" society that counts.

Mr. Sharkey received a very good hand. A good looking fighter seems to hold an attraction. Jack posed with Tex Rickard for a picture in the ring, and Tex acted as referee in one of the bouts.

THE whole show, until the exhibition wrestling match that ended the evening, was about as interesting as this story. Society debs, or their mothers, had never seen any human being resembling Komar, or any Komar resembling a human being. George "Farmer" McLeod was the other exhibitor.

Leon Burbank, well-known referee, realized that it was no Grand Opera House crowd he was addressing. Leon put on his best Oxford accent, and actually, announced, believe it or not, that there was to be a "wrestling" bout. As long as we remember, Leon had never before described one of these battles of faces and growls and holds as anything but a "rassling" match.

We were proud of Leon.

MRS. GERALD BRAMWELL was there, we found, on casting about another glance. Miss Louise Batchelder was there. And so were many others. In fact, all Boston society that counted was there.

We are very good at mind reading. We do not even have to have a ball. A crystal ball of course. Fixing our mind on one golden haired vision we concentrated.

None of the debs seemed to care much about the fighters themselves. No fighter engaged in a monologue on Shakespeare, or Shelley, or Keats. Or, on Ming Dynasty chinaware. Or, on the absolute nothing of nothingness. Or, on nothing at all.

They walked in, swung their arms, and walked or were carried out.

There is a long road yet to go before all fighters become Tunneys.

The poetic janitor had gone to rest. A hard boiled assistant remained to pick up the cigarette butts that littered the carpeted floors.

"They ought'nt to allow smoking at these bouts. Look at them carpets. Holes in 'em."

Well, there was no place else to throw the butts but on the floor.

• • •

THIS collar is cutting my throat. There is nothing more to say but that all Boston society attended the boxing show at the Copley Plaza last evening. They were all there. All Boston society that counts.

Summary of bouts.

118-Pound Class—Jerry Sterrette, Chelsea defeated Luke Record, Charlestown, three rounds. Robert O'Connell, South Boston defeated Robert Baker, Boston, three rounds. Final bout—Jerry Sterrette defeated Angelo Taragune, Lawrence, three rounds.

126-Pound Class—Charley Lenge, Boston, defeated Babe Feriene, Brockton, one round. Final bout—Charley Lenge, defeated Johnny Coccora, Revere, one round.

Swedish wrestling fans will pack the Grand Opera House to the doors on Thursday night when the two best Swedish wrestlers since the days of Hjalmar Lundin meet top-line opponents in [illegible] Bowser's weekly show.

John Friberg, winner of [illegible] consecutive matches since coming to this country, [illegible] Farmer George McLeod [illegible] Hansen is to meet [illegible] Coleman in one of the preliminary bouts.

The winner of the Friberg-McLeod match is to take on Dynamite Gus Sonnenberg, the [illegible] of the wrestling world, at the Arena one week from Thursday. Sonnenberg never fails to draw in the neighborhood of $10,000 for his efforts, and Friberg and McLeod will be fighting for the "big shot."

Friberg is expected to arrive in Boston tomorrow afternoon, and will probably work at the South End Gymnasium. McLeod, who came through two sensational battles with Ed Strangler Lewis without a scratch, is already in superb condition, and expects to turn back the Swedish star and then go on to whip Sonnenberg.

The semifinal match, between Stanley Stasiak and Joe "Bull" Komar, is almost as attractive as the main bout. Messrs Stasiak and Komar are leading in the unpopularity contest at the present moment. They are rough-house wrestlers supreme, and when the two gentle youths step to the front Thursday night, all rules will be forgotten.

In the opening match, Dr. Karl Sarpolis, the sheik of the wrestling world, is to meet Frank Bruno of Russia.

Caldwell Hero of Yale Victory

New Haven, May 29 (INS)—Bruce Caldwell, Yale's great football star, is winning new laurels on the diamond. His triple and home run gave the Elis a 3-to-2 triumph over the Keio University nine of Japan here yesterday.

Caldwell, a second baseman, has been offered a contract by several major league clubs, including the New York Yankees.

Earnshaw, Oriole Star, Goes to A's

Philadelphia, May 29—Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, has announced the purchase of Pitcher George Earnshaw from the Baltimore Orioles for $50,000 and two pitchers.

One of the pitchers is Bill Shores and the other probably will be Jing Johnson.

Capt. Perley Crosby Must Use Rare Judgment in Pairing Players

TODAY'S MATCHES

Brae Burn at Woodland.
Charles River at Wollaston.
Commonwealth at the Country Club.
Belmont Spring at Oakley.
Winchester at Weston.

By BILL GRIMES

Capt. Perley F. Crosby of the Woodland Golf Club four-ball team, will hurl his strongest combination at Brae Burn this afternoon, in the hopes that his charges will capture a sufficient number of points to pull up on even terms with their neighbors.

The Brae Burn team is three and one-half points out in front of Woodland going into today's battle, and the Auburndale team is tied with the Country Club. Both teams are exceptionally strong, with the edge slightly favoring Brae Burn, but with an opportunity to get within hailing distance of the champions, the Woodlanders will fight as they never have in the past.

Francis Ouimet and Jesse Guilford will be in the Woodland lineup. Ouimet has been playing some fine golf this season, despite the fact that he had displayed a tendency towards wildness off the tees.

Francis is recovering in wonderful style, more than offsetting whatever advantage his opponents have had off the tees.

GUILFORD IN RARE FORM

The return to his old-time form makes Jesse Guilford a large factor in today's match. Jesse has been slowly rounding into form, after being put off his game earlier in the spring by an attack of the grippe.

He went through in great style at Wollaston during the Mass. open, finishing one stroke back of Emory P. Stratton of Brae Burn, who lead the amateurs with a 310.

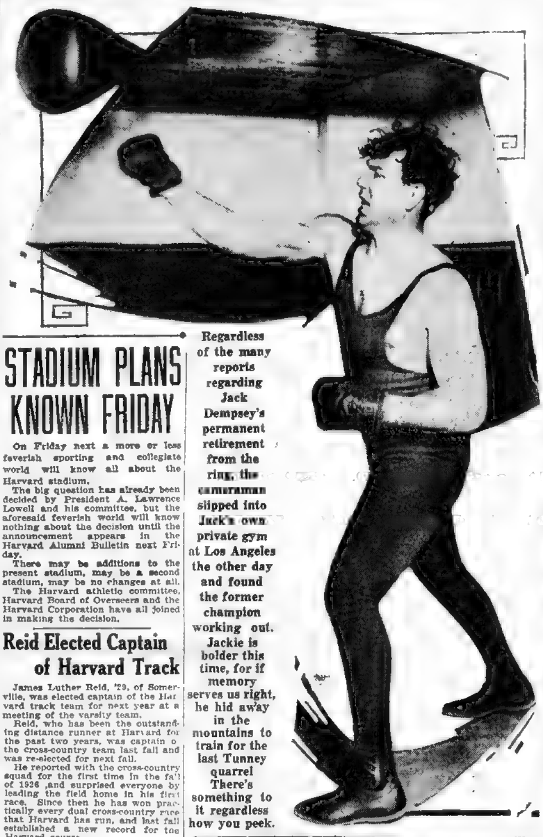
Playing a practice round at Woodland on Sunday, Jesse had a 72, and he was red hot in the Larry Paton memorial tournament paired with John Keenan.

Although much faith is being placed in Francis Ouimet and Jesse Guilford, Woodland has another golfer in Perley F. Crosby, who is capable of going around the Auburndale course in remarkable low figures. The fate of Woodland depends in a large measure on the pairing of its players, for Brae Burn is strong throughout.

In Emory P. Stratton and Eddie Stimpson, Brae Burn has the best four ball combination in the league. Stratton and Stimpson have seldom been setback in four ball matches.

The manner in which they team up is really uncanny. They were off their games last week at Charles River, but they took the measure of Eddie Murphy and Phillips Finlay.

WHAT DOES ALL THIS MEAN?



Regardless of the many reports regarding Jack Dempsey's permanent retirement from the ring, the cameraman slipped into Jack's own private gym at Los Angeles the other day and found the former champion working out. Jackie is bolder this time, for if memory serves us right, he hid away in the mountains to train for the last Tunney quarrel There's something to it regardless how you peek.

STADIUM PLANS KNOWN FRIDAY

On Friday next a more or less feverish sporting and collegiate world will know all about the Harvard stadium.

The big question has already been decided by President A. Lawrence Lowell and his committee, but the aforesaid feverish world will know nothing about the decision until the announcement appears in the Harvard Alumni Bulletin next Friday.

There may be additions to the present stadium, may be a second stadium, may be no changes at all.

The Harvard athletic committee, Harvard Board of Overseers and the Harvard Corporation have all joined in making the decision.

Reid Elected Captain of Harvard Track

James Luther Reid, '29, of Somerville, was elected captain of the Harvard track team for next year at a meeting of the varsity team.

Reid, who has been the outstanding distance runner at Harvard for the past two years, was captain o the cross-country team last fall and was re-elected for next fall.

He reported with the cross-country squad for the first time in the fall of 1926 ,and surprised everyone by leading the field home in his first race. Since then he has won practically every dual cross-country race that Harvard has run, and last fall established a new record for the Harvard course.

MR. BOSTON

By Jack Conway

"BILLY DUFFY of New York, who seconded Jack Dempsey in his bouts with Jack Sharkey and Gene Tunney last year, is one man who believes Tom Heeney has a chance of winning in his world's championship battle with Tunney in July," said Mr. Boston today.

"I had a chat with Duffy as he watched Arthur Flynn weigh in at the State House. It was natural that the talk should turn to heavyweights, as Duffy knows as much about the big fellows as any man in the world.

"'If Tunney fails to cut Heeney to ribbons during the first 10 rounds of their coming bout,' declared Duffy with much conviction, 'he will know he is in a regular fight during those last five rounds. Heeney is trained for the 15-round distance. The longer a fight goes the better he gets. He may get outpointed during the early stages of the contest, but if the tussle lasts for more than 10 rounds you can bet all the tea in China that Tunney will have to fight as he never did before.

"'Heeney has not got much boxing class, but he has kept busy in the ring. The trouble with the so-called ring leaders of today is that they do not keep active enough. There are long periods of inactivity between their bouts. They rust out nowadays instead of fighting themselves out. That's why Dempsey lost his title to Tunney at Philadelphia. The same condition of affairs is going to spell pugilistic ruin for Tunney.'

ASKED whom he thought was the best of the challengers, Duffy answered:

"'Sharkey is the best of the lot, but he requires more fights and more experience. I was amazed when Johnny Buckley told me that Sharkey has had only 36 bouts during his entire career. He got to the front faster than any outstanding boxer in the history of the ring.

"'I realize it is but natural for Sharkey and Buckley to wish to wait back for the big money shots, but I believe that Sharkey would improve more if he took on Tom, Dick and Harry around the hit-and-run circuit and picked up additional experience. A couple of warm-up fights would also help to prepare him for his major efforts.

"'Sharkey has Flaming Youth, speed, boxing class, a punch and a world of courage. If he gets more fights, he will some day be champion. Dempsey told me after his bout with Sharkey last summer that the Boston heavyweight was a sure thing bet to lick Tunney.'"

MR. BOSTON asked Duffy what Dempsey's opinion was of Tunney as a fighter.

"'Not very high,' replied Billy. 'At Philadelphia Dempsey was in poor physical and mental condition. He should not have gone into the ring. And yet Tunney couldn't knock him out. Later Jack told me that if Tunney couldn't stop him at that time that he felt he couldn't do so in 100 rounds.

"'At Chicago Dempsey knocked Tunney out only to be deprived of the championship by a long count.

"'I have studied the pictures of the two Dempsey-Tunney bouts carefully. Tunney won both times not because he is a great fighter, but because he knows how to fight Dempsey.

ROGELL WILL CAPTAIN BIG LEAGUERS

The largest crowd ever to attend a ball game in Cambridge is expected at Russell Field this evening when a combined team of Philadelphia Athletics and Boston Red Sox will meet the strong Cambridge Catholic Club at 6 o'clock.

The clash this evening will be a benefit game in behalf of Francis "Rabbit" Riley, king of the Cambridge baseball mascots, who is convalescing at Saranac Lake. The little rabbit is in dire need of funds and the Cambridge committee with President Bob Quinn of the Red Sox have arranged this evening's affair.

The major league team will be captained by Billy Rogell, Red Sox infielder, and will also have in its ranks three leading players with the Philadelphia Athletics and Joe Cicero, boy wonder infielder of the Carrigan tribe.

The gathering this evening should constitute a new attendance record for the Cambridge ball park. Most of the bleacher seats have been sold, while the rush for the remaining seats will undoubtedly keep the large police detail on their toes.

Ernie Williams, old Braves pitcher, will face the big leaguers with Jim Dudley of Harvard working behind the plate. Other prominent players in the Catholic Club roster are Johnny Carver, St. George, Conroy and Temple.

Hagen's Withdrawal Arouses Ire of Irish

Newcastle, Northern Ireland, May 29 (AP)—Walter Hagen, who was criticized by the British press two years ago for what was regarded as unsportsmanlike conduct, is the center of a similar storm in Ireland.

Hagen suddenly withdrew from the Irish open golf championship, starting today. He explained that he was too tired because of his continental tour to compete. Some golfers, seeing an outstanding contender eliminated, rejoiced, but the Golfing Union of Ireland fumed.

Alan Kidd, secretary of the union, charged that Hagen had broken faith and violated an agreement to play in the Irish open provided an exhibition match was arranged for him in Dublin last Saturday. The exhibition match was arranged and Hagen, playing with I. Quinn, Dublin professional, lost to two Irish professionals, W. Nolan and W. Holley.

Hagen, in telegraphing his withdrawal, proposed to contribute his share of the proceeds of the match to any Irish charity the committee might name. The committee, however, decided not to accept the money because it considered his action unsportsmanlike.

"Hagen not only has injured his name as a sportsman here, but indirectly has hurt the good name of all Americans," Kidd said. "Hagen seems to forget that he not only represents himself but his country as well when he comes abroad. When he makes an arrangement to appear in the Irish open championship and all details are made, including the draw with a partner for him, and then cancels his entry, we resent it."

Riot Follows Title Mat Bout

Minneapolis, May 29 (AP)—A championship wrestling match ended in disorder early today after Ed Strangler Lewis, heavyweight titleholder, had been given the decision over Martin Plestina, Chicago challenger.

The crowd surged around the ring threatening Lewis and Referee Fred Tonneman, Chicago, who were protected by police.

Lewis and Plestina each had won a fall—Lewis the first with a toehold in 39 minutes and 41 seconds, Plestina the second with a flying mare in 14 minutes and 24 seconds. In the third session Plestina suddenly went down, apparently from a swing to the jaw by the champion, was pounced upon and was awarded the decision. Plestina was unconscious for four minutes.

Martha Lee Tells of Dainty Desserts

By MARTHA LEE

AFTER a heavy meal a light dessert is [illegible]. Indeed the secret of the success of a good dinner is in the fact that [illegible] [illegible] please. When an otherwise heavy meal is topped by a simple dessert, the guests at the table will rise with a pleasant sense of [illegible] than with a suppressed groan of discomfort.

Martha Lee

Plain fruit or a fruit combination [illegible] has been [illegible]. When [illegible] it should be [illegible] on the table. It is true both of canned fruit and fresh fruit that it is much more tempting if it is [illegible] in the refrigerator a while before [illegible].

[illegible] the double virtue of being simple to make and inexpensive:

Marshmallow Fruit Jelly—Drain syrup from 1 can fruit for salad and to it add 2 tbsp. lemon juice and 8 marshmallows cut up, and heat until melted. Meanwhile, soften 2 tsp. gelatin in 2 tbsp. cold water, then dissolve it in the hot syrup. When cool and [illegible] to a froth with an egg beater. Arrange the fruit in a wet mold and [illegible] with whipped cream.

Pineapple Banana Torte—Break into small pieces 2 c. of sponge cake. Add 1 c. diced [illegible] pineapple, ½ c. [illegible] bananas. Beat 1 c. of heavy cream and fold in lightly. Pile in glasses and chill. Serves 8.

Apple Fluff—Beat 1 c. heavy [illegible] chopped nuts and ½ c. chopped dates.

Peach Custard—In a double boiler cook a boiled custard using 2 c. of scalded milk, the yolks of 3 eggs, slightly beaten, ¼ c. sugar, ⅛ tsp. salt. Stir constantly while cooking and remove from the stove and strain as soon as the custard thickens and forms a coating on the spoon.

Flavor with ½ tsp. vanilla and set aside to cool. Arrange alternate layers of stale cake and sections of sliced peaches in a glass serving dish and pour the custard over the top.

Peach M[illegible]—Make a meringue [illegible] whites of 2 eggs until stiff [illegible] add gradually [illegible] sugar, [illegible] Flavor with [illegible] or ¼ tsp. [illegible]

[illegible] from the [illegible] brown [illegible] serve [illegible]

[illegible] custard [illegible]

[illegible] of a [illegible] bowl, and [illegible] egg beater for [illegible] stiff enough to hold its shape. Chill. Arrange a serving plate with lady [illegible] and serve with boiled custard.

Three-Minute Trips

By TEMPLE MANNING

NO visitor to Italy would miss the Leaning Tower of Pisa. Indeed, [illegible] a person in the civilized world who has not heard of it, and seen its picture, but [illegible] few, however, know its history.

It is not known whether the architects of the tower, Romano and William of Innsbruck, intended it to [illegible]. [illegible], however, is that after the building was started the foundation [illegible]. In any event, the building, which was begun in 1174, was not finished until 1350. It is 180 feet high, its foundation goes down but 10 feet, being no larger [illegible] than is the building on the outside.

The Tower is continuing to list more and more as the time passes. In 1880 it leaned 12¼ feet out of the perpendicular. At present, it leans about [illegible] feet. Experts are at work to keep it at this figure. But so far, they have not found a way to keep it from swaying more.

When the building was but 35 feet high, it was noticed that it was slightly out of the perpendicular. It was [illegible] the other side to offset this but to no avail. Work on the Tower, because of this, was stopped for a number of years, but eventually it was completed. It is now one of the wonders of the world.

wheat, give the Canadian farmers an advantage of 8 to 10 cents a bushel over our farmers in the world's markets.

Senator Capper introduced a bill to help fix that. Secretary Hoover and Governor Smith, one of whom probably will be President a year hence, promise cheap wheat transportation by canal.

Something should be done.

Meantime, Senator Capper prints in big type: "THE RAILROAD-RELIEF ACT WORKS FINE. IT HAS PUT THE ROADS ON THEIR FEET AND ALL THE FARMING THEY HAVE TO DO IS OCCASIONALLY TO RAISE THE RATES."

Henry Ford says, "What's the use of talking about any limit to United States development?

"I for one, can scarcely see more than a beginning here and there."

That's how healthy business minds feel about it.

James Speer puts it briefly: "Prosperity is our NORMAL CONDITION, nothing will interfere with it but foolishness."

American gold is going to Europe rapidly. If we are too careless our large supplies will drift across the water.

London is drawing gold STEADILY, which puts up British exchange. The Bank of France has added $220,000,000 in gold to its reserves this year.

In addition, Americans travelling abroad leave a thousand millions a year in gold money behind them.

We helped our foreign friends to finance their big war and now we are helping them recover from it.

Whom would you suggest for vice-president on the Republican ticket? How would you go about selecting him?

New York's Business Men's League suggests Col. Theodore Roosevelt. His father accepted the vice-presidency against his will, complaining "I am being side-tracked." It turned out to be quite a conspicuous "side-track."

Governor Lowden is said to have declined the vice-presidency when Harding was elected. Had he accepted he would be president now.

Advice to Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"WHY is it considered wrong to 'pick up' an acquaintance," asks Hopeful. Her question will find an echo in the thoughts of many girls who respect only those conventions that have a good reason to justify their existence.

"Of course," continues Hopeful, "I would never get in a machine with anyone I did not know. That would be taking too big a chance.

"Some men seem to think they have the right to speak to just any girl who comes along. I am not in the habit of doing that, but I met a very nice young man in that way I have known him almost a year He calls on me regularly every week I am beginning to like him very much, and would like to know whether I should give up his friendship because of the way we met. I thank you very much."

EVEN in this unconventional age, Hopeful, girls are particular about making friends and acquaintances. A girl does not care to share her companionship with a man of whom she knows nothing. To do so would be dangerous in many instances, for the greatest blackguards can make themselves appear charming and likable and can gain a girl's confidence in this way, leading in some instances, to swindling, burglaries, kidnaping and even murder.

Then, too, it cheapens a girl when it is known that any man can meet her without an introduction. Of course, there are exceptions to all rules. Those who work together or travel together year in and year out, or share a long journey together day after day, might exchange credentials and become friends.

I am glad the risky thing you did in picking up an acquaintance turned out well, after all. And I agree with you that the habit of speaking to people you do not know is undesirable, while riding with strangers is actually dangerous.

THE old, old question: "Is it better to have loved and lost, than never to have loved at all?" recurs in reading the following letter from Maurice:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I am in love with a girl who came over from England but a few months ago. I have taken her out often, and we have had some very pleasant times together—moments that will linger with me forever.

"My love for her made me very happy and turned my thoughts to the better things of life. How cleanly I desired to live! How enthusiastically I worked!

"Now, that she sees how serious I am, she tells me of a sweetheart in London whom she cannot forget. She acts very much as though she doesn't wish to encourage me any further, which hurts me deeply.

"As happy as I was, just that miserable I am now! Your advice will be greatly appreciated."

YOUR love has enriched life for you Maurice, has it not, giving you new and higher horizons? This will remain true, even though you never possess the object of your devotion.

If your love is for her, and not mere love of possession, you will rejoice in all that makes her happy and counts for her good, regardless of yourself and your own interests.

Even though she may not wish to encourage your love, gratefully accept her friendship if she extends it to you, and go about with her occasionally, if only to talk of the older friend she cannot forget. Time and distance sometimes work great changes. She may in the fullness of time turn to you, finding that, after all, the other was not the great love it appears now to her.

So be patient, hope for her happiness, stand ready to be her true friend, and rejoice in the richness and inspiration of love, even when it is unrequited. All happiness to you!

MY DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I met my "girl friend" in the ferry-house this morning with five young men, and one of them was kissing her on the cheek. She says she was waiting for her chum What do you think of the matter, please?

A. A.

I WOULD think twice, my friend, before taking this type of girl seriously. She seemingly has too little reserve, and values herself too lightly, to be very dependable.

Adventure and Romance Amid Scenes of Almost Barbaric Splendor

CHAPTER 37

It was about 8 p. m. when we resumed our journey and we felt fit for anything. I pulled up at the small island of reeds and landing with Renchoro I showed him the path and likewise where he could hide himself and see and not be seen. I had all these things studied out, the distance to the sacred spring was about half a mile or a little more from the main river.

I ordered him to keep the boys from landing and let them know nothing of our intent till they found it all out for themselves.

He understood what I had said and played his part well. I had explained all to Peru.

On landing we found the place very quiet as they had just had a great ceremony, the invoking of Ilanungo, the rain god.

Following the sacred chief one by one came the whole male portion of his attendants. They invited us to make ourselves at home and inquired if we had brought the musical box which they would very much like to hear.

And Renchoro now appeared with a trayful of rum and old dom about as stupefying a mixture as one could drink, thanks to the advice of my old friend, Mr. Schultz (Schiff?) it acted splendidly.

All fair in love and war is an old true saying. The musical box was brought in by Renchoro and we were soon having a royal time.

The liquor had its effect, which was marvelous. The man who wore the big, goggle-eyed mask and generally stood next to the Isoga was soon more than happy, we let them play away to their hearts content.

The old Sacred Chief and master of ceremonies now asked when we were going to let him have it as he was sure it contained the music of many friendly spirits. I told him we would leave it till we returned which would be in about twelve days as we were going to Gaboon on business, and he could tell by that time if the spirits inside the box were to his liking.

He felt overjoyed at our generosity and declared that I had already done much good by my visits to the temple as my presents had helped them out very much in their sacred work. I said I was quite willing to lend a helping hand at any time to such a good cause.

Nina Looked, if Possible, More Beautiful Than Ever

At this stage of the play Nina entered looking if possible more beautiful than before. I watched her eye the assemblage with a smile, we were all happy and smiling. I gave her the glad eye and then shut one without being noticed also raised one hand above my head containing a small blue silk handkerchief.

She threw me a look I could not mistake and she also touched one eye. She had understood, she was ready any time. I ordered more drinks for the faithful and bade them all a good aurevoir, telling them I would be sure to call on my return. We now retired leaving the lot merrie as sandboys.

Once clear of the place I lost no time it was dark only what light the stars gave, and our knowledge of the surroundings guided us as we pulled away without making a single sound, and entering the reeds I jumped ashore. Renchoro took his stand where I had told him accompanied by ten rifle men.

Peru remained in the boat with the remainder all ready for action on the call of Renchoro. I now crept slowly and noiselessly to the place agreed upon by myself and the Goddess. It was so dark I could just see her figure in white sitting on the bank. I threw some mud in the water and waited. I could hear her giving her female attendant orders to fetch something from the meeting house. I heard her maid walk away.

Several moments after this the white object hit the water which was deep by making a beautiful dive scarcely audible. I waited quite a few seconds but could see no motion of any kind but now a slight breathing struck my ear. Her head which I could see quietly disappeared again.

I crept to the point and waiting a few seconds out popped the head of the Goddess. She held out her arm which I caught and still crouching she landed beside me. She took a few breaths for a second or two and quickly came to. She was a splendid diver.

We now crept noiselessly forward keeping close to the ground and were soon out of danger of anyone seeing us from the other bank of the creek which widened here. I told her to rest a while but she was too excited to understand and was breathing heavily.

Springing to Her Feet, She Ran for the Boat

Springing to her feet she ran for the boat at great speed, waving the stiletto she had drawn from her belt high above her head. I kept close to her, as she reached the rushes she fell heavily, unconscious, dropping the stiletto. I carried her to the boat and gently handed her to Peru, who placed her on the bunk in the small cabin forward.

Renchoro and his men quickly boarded and we darted out into the river, heading for the opposite bank where the channel was wider and swifter.

Leaving Nina in charge of my friend, I kept the night glasses on the mouth of the creek until we were well away past Isogas town and had also passed into the wide channel of the river. I saw no moving object and heard no sound, and as we moved at great speed down stream, which was continually widening, I made sail and made sure that no dangerous craft could follow. I was with sail and paddles working well the swiftest boat on the river.

I felt supremely happy. I had won so far against the terrible despot, Isoga, who I knew would not dare to follow me, and this he well knew even if his people had now been aroused.

I told the crew to take things easy and Renchoro to give them each a tot of the best brandy we had, and took one myself on my good luck in having made such an easy capture.

The Goddess having been freed Trader Horn makes a few interesting observations to Mrs. Lewis before writing the final chapters of his unique story.

"George Bussey used to say the end of a book is the moment of delicacy.

"Aye, the finale's the thing. But at all periods of composition you should be able to detract from the subject now and then, George Bussey says. Glance away from it and let the mind float free. Doesn't do just to say 'They were married on board ship.' To leave out some pretty little vision of the weather and the sea-birds would be to miss out one of the greatest ingredients of life, which is—natural environment.

CARE OF TABLE LINEN

Whatever the type of linen used, there should be little difference in its care. There is the golden rule of placing the things that come back from the laundry at the bottom of the snowy pile, so that no one piece has more than its fair share of wear and tear. Another wise precaution is that of repairing the tiniest holes before the damaged linen is sent to be washed. Stains of all kinds should be removed at home, and this is in most cases a simple matter. But it is absolutely essential that not only the stain itself, but the chemical agents used to efface it should be removed before the process of washing is begun. It is the omission of this second process which is responsible for so many apparently unaccountable holes and thin places.

Gay Told Herself She Couldn't Destroy the Picture of Jerry

When Gay showed Jerry's gift to Alan she said: "From a girl I went to school with."

To destroy the picture of Jerry was, Gay told herself, impossible.

house of open fireplaces and arched doorways, of rough painted plaster walls and mossy carpets, of built-in bookcases and gentle golden lights, of artistry, of atmosphere. A house with French windows that sipped in the winds of summer and held the winter cold at bay behind the thick silk draperies."

A house with French doors that opened onto a grass-plotted lawn, with flower beds and a sun dial and little brick path. . . . A high stone wall ran around the outside edge. You almost fancied, when you went to peek over the wall, that you would see adjoining lawns and neighbors' houses. But you didn't. You saw the huddled city miles below, and the ragged blue skein of the East river.

There were eight rooms. A living room, a dining room, a model kitchen, three bedrooms and two baths. For more than a month decorators—and Naomi Nardin—had been at work on these eight rooms; they were as complete as rooms yet lacking occupants could be. There were books in the bookcases. There were satin spreads on the beds and monogrammed toilet articles on the dressing tables. Even such details as trays, cooking utensils, bath salts, bedside thermos bottles and attractive camouflage for the telephones had not been overlooked. Clocks told the correct time and flowers freshly cut were everywhere.

Mr. Pomeroy had leased the bungalow for five years. The furniture and fittings and a check to cover the rent during that period were his gifts to his son and daughter-in-law.

Gay had intended to leave her third-floor sitting room at her father's house precisely as it was; a sort of Trophy Room to which she might return, to sit alone sometimes and just remember. But the impending sale of the house nullified that plan. It was necessary either to move or to dispose of everything she owned, and in the bungalow there was no place to put the souvenirs of the gone, precious years. . . . She spent a sentimental morning destroying them.

Photographs, first. She emptied the frames along the mantel (some of them held two, three, four young men, layer upon layer) and piled the pictures on the floor beside the fireplace. From a closet shelf she lifted down a cardboard suit box full of other pictures, and dumped them with the rest. Then, seated Turk fashion on a cushion at the edge of the hearth, she began the holocaust.

The top of the pile was out of the bottom of the box. These were old pictures. She turned them over one by one, smiling pensively. Her earliest beaux. What children they seemed! Indeed [illegible] that [illegible]

She remembered the proprietary [illegible] she had [illegible] it lovel[illegible] that had glowed in her one June [illegible] a great race the little secret surge of pride when somebody [illegible] her on the observation train [illegible] to somebody else "That's [illegible] girl . . . ." Here was Harry. He was a young medical student [illegible] she had once been engaged between Christmas and Easter. Funny Harry—so extremely professional, so far more professional than in all his life to come he would be again! He had regarded her as though through an invisible microscope, and tried to force her to wear overshoes when it rained. And she had always suspected him of recording the beats of her heart while he kissed her. . . .

It was somehow hard to lay these pictures on the fire; it was like cremating things not yet quite dead, burying things that still breathed faintly. . . . To destroy the picture of Jerry Gay was, she told herself tremulously, impossible. She cut out the head of that photograph with finger [illegible] scissors and slipped it down the [illegible] of her gown.

Dr. Charles A. Reed Discusses Some Problems of Pure Milk

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D., Former President of the American Medical Association.

YOUR milk, the milk that you buy, may be clean and pure. I am sure that, as a result of the agitation that has been carried on by the medical profession for the last fifteen or twenty years, the milk supplied to all well regulated cities is much improved and, in many instances, is reliably safe. This, however, is far from being a 100 per cent condition.

You have a right to insist upon three things, namely:

First: That your milk shall be kept clean at its source.

Second: That it shall be kept clean in transit.

Third: That is shall be kept free from deleterious chemical change without the addition of preservatives.

If these three requirements are met the larger part, but not all, of the milk question will be solved. The matter of germ contamination remains as the chief perplexing problem. Today, however, I wish to say something about just plain "common filth", leaving some thoughts on the germ question until tomorrow.

The efforts which are spent in the attempt to clean milk which has been dirtied are being wasted along entirely wrong lines. Milk as the calf receives it from the udder of a healthy cow is almost sterile. As the public receives it, it is an organic fluid dirty beyond imagination, and only the fact that it is opaque saves it from being instantly condemned. If we could see the dirt as [illegible] we [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] milk from the [illegible] shed [illegible] not [illegible] from the cow [illegible] In the shed, however [illegible] opportunity of [illegible] clean [illegible] has so [illegible] [illegible] getting dirty. When cows [illegible] robes are thrown into the [illegible] the shed, and the washing and dressing of the cows [illegible] farms, [illegible] done at [illegible] according [illegible] from a class that are not peculiarly [illegible] themselves and can hardly be expected to keep the animals any cleaner.

Except in the very largest farms, dairy hands have to do many other things besides handle milk. They have to feed the cows and clean the [illegible] and passages, work [illegible] their clothes, hands and [illegible] We know how long it takes to wash our hands with soap, [illegible] The [illegible] hands [illegible] are still more difficult to clean, and it is asking too much to expect of men and women, roused from sleep early on a winter morning, that they should wash themselves elaborately before they milk the cows.

It has been shown to be possible, with a [illegible] supervision by educated persons, to keep ordinary market milk cleaner than the grading orders demand, but this standard is seldom reached, and pasteurization is resorted to to kill microbes that should have been kept out.

Mme. Maria Jeritza Tells How to Obtain Bathing Suit Charm

By Maria Jeritza, Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, One of the Most Beautiful Women of the Day.

MANY a girl is thrilled by the thought that the bathing season will begin within a few days now, even at the more Northern beaches.

Have you been looking over your last year's bathing suit, wondering whether it will be out of date this season? Let me assure you, if the suit fits and is in good condition, it should do very well indeed, for fashions in bathing suits have changed very little if any since last summer. So you may be able to buy a pretty new beach coat or cape instead of a new suit or a gay beach umbrella, or a rubberized bag to carry your towels, comb and cold cream.

These accessories are just as necessary as a smart suit, to a woman who wishes to look her loveliest. A beach umbrella will enable you to bask in the warm sand and fresh air without acquiring sunburn or freckles.

Choose these accessories in shades that match, harmonize or contrast becomingly with the color of your bathing suit. It is especially wise to protect yourself from the sun by means of a beach wrap, especially on the neck and arms, where freckles are so conspicuous and sunburn seems unusually painful. Tan, of course is a different proposition, for it is harmless and rather becoming to the average woman, giving her a wholesome, outdoor look.

In order to get only good from your dip, do not stay in the water more than 20 minutes. While you are in, keep active by swimming, diving or paddling about. When you come out of the water, toss about your big beach ball or [illegible] or practice setting up exercises a few moments until you are fairly warm and dry, [illegible] in the sand.

To the [illegible] woman [illegible] hairs on [illegible] [illegible] suggest that she ignore [illegible] they are [illegible], and use the best depilatory [illegible] ugly and make her self conscious. There are cream depilatories to be had which are mild [illegible] weeks should be often enough to apply a depilatory. After removing it, always rub cold cream on your skin.

Swimming out-of-doors is a wonderful tonic to your health and beauty and it is great fun. I hope [illegible] in Summer. I intend to live up to this advice myself, for I have learned from experience that there is no better, or more enjoyable way of laying up health and pep for a strenuous winter season, than to take a swim every day in summer.

Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

TOO [illegible] of praise is sometimes [illegible] when others call a man content. [illegible] content is good, and yet it seems to speak forgetfulness of dreams, and all [illegible] wizardry of youth when eager hearts go seeking truth. What [illegible] man on from goal to goal? Content? Not so the [illegible] man so he has sought and conquered Earth's far verge; but driven ever by some urge more dear than ease or peace or rest man vanquished sea and mountain crest, and, soaring up on shining wings, has ventured where the planets swing. Too often all man's best has died when he is wholly satisfied.

off by a lace and crepe after dinner ensemble, a smartly contrived almond green, with lace frock and crepe lace coat wrap. A necklet of pearls and long swinging earrings of pearls on antique gold were her ornaments.

MRS. BARRON'S FROU FROU frock of black net and taffeta had a trail of rosy flowers from one hip. Mrs. Samuel Felton was a slender slip of a thing in a water green frock that was simplicity itself. Mrs. Church is a brilliant-eyed young matron knowing full well the effectiveness of the all white costume. A wrap of ermine and a frock of silvery white lame were her contribution to the evening's picture. Mrs. Philip Saltonstall's wardrobe contains some beautiful wraps, among them the exquisite ermine she wore last evening over black moire.

MR. AND MRS. LYON [illegible]BURN occupied ringside places. So did Mrs William Mixter, looking radiant in rose tinted gown and fox collared wrap. Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Everett, Jr., watched the spectacle intently from vantage points within a few paces of the sparring and the wrestling. Mr. and Mrs Hugh Bancroft had a box overlooking the ring itself, one of the many choice places from which to view the fisticuffs.

MR. AND MRS. BANCROFT'S party included their daughter, Miss Jessie Bancroft. Quite grand operish it was, to see a Bancroft party in a box. Mrs. Bancroft wore a handsome metal brocade costume in pastel shades, and Miss Bancroft was in a lace frock. Mrs. William Barnes's evening frock was fashionably gleaming and smartly simple, and her wrap was a lovely furred confection richly in keeping with the evening and the occasion, when the fashionables saw boxing politely done.

'Climbing Heights' to Success

By LUCY LOWELL

CONTENTMENT is almost the most desirable thing in life, springing as it does from the sense of work well done, a clear conscience, progress accomplished, a reasonable amount of happiness.

But discontent has its place, also; not the whining dissatisfaction with all that fate has to offer, which is nothing more than egotism cropping up, but the wish to make things better, more beautiful, more filled with blessing to more people than they are. Constructive discontent, this is; and it is the root of all achievement.

"Bad will be the day for every man when he becomes absolutely contented with the life that he is living, with the thoughts that he is thinking, with the deeds that he is doing," wrote Phillips Brooks.

"When there is not forever beating at the doors of his soul some great desire to do something larger which he knows that he was meant and made to do because he is still, in spite of all, the child of God."

Feeling that you wish to excel because you are, as he says, the "child of God," does not seem to be a prerogative of the religious man or woman only.

Taken in this sense it means, I believe, the desire to climb the heights because man was meant to live on the heights; because there is something so fine, so very noble in him that he cannot be content with anything less than the best.

Final Bid 1 N.T. Played by East

THE BIDDING

A bid by South with his holding would be wholly unsound, lacking, as it does the two quick tricks required for an original bid by Dealer or Second Hand.

East has sufficient strength for a Fourth Hand bid and the distribution of 4-4-3-3 makes No Trump preferable to an introductory four card Major.

THE PLAY

Trick 1. Declarer's best chance for two tricks in Spades is to go up with Dummy's Queen.

Trick 2. South holds up the King of Diamonds hoping that Declarer may use one of Dummy's entries for another finesse which might also give him some idea of his partner's strength or weakness in the other suits and eventually prevent the establishment of a long Diamond in Dummy.

Trick 3. East does not use the King of Clubs, his only sure entry to Dummy, for a second Diamond finesse, as only three tricks can be made in the suit even if the finesse be successful and but two tricks if South is holding up the King.

Tricks 4 and 5. North tries to "echo" in Hearts, but South is unable to read the trey as a request for a shift and so continues Spades.

Trick 11. Declarer throws North in with his Club Jack, forcing a lead up to Dummy's King of Hearts.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

Within the circle of five miles round Charing Cross, London contains more than 300 statues of famous men and women.

The Crystal Palace contained 242 miles of glass panes. The roof contains enough glass to cover a 25-acre field.

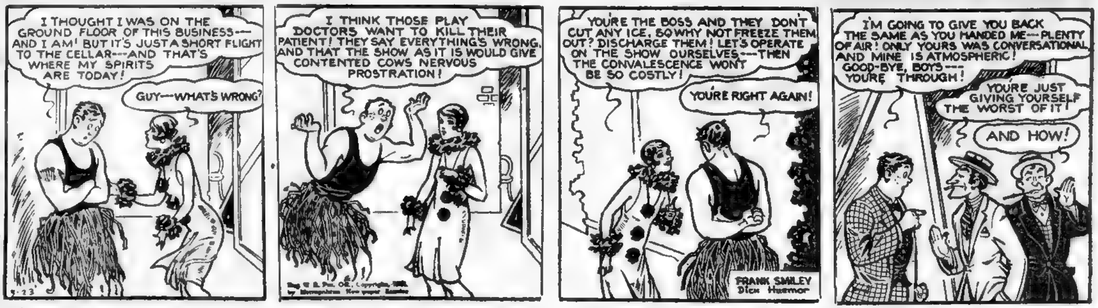
Airing the Experts

By Frank Smiley



I THOUGHT I WAS ON THE GROUND FLOOR OF THIS BUSINESS--- AND I AM! BUT IT'S JUST A SHORT FLIGHT TO THE CELLAR---AND THAT'S WHERE MY SPIRITS ARE TODAY!
GUY---WHAT'S WRONG?
I THINK THOSE PLAY DOCTORS WANT TO KILL THEIR PATIENT! THEY SAY EVERYTHING'S WRONG, AND THAT THE SHOW AS IT IS WOULD GIVE CONTENTED COWS NERVOUS PROSTRATION!
YOU'RE THE BOSS AND THEY DON'T CUT ANY ICE, SO WHY NOT FREEZE THEM OUT? DISCHARGE THEM! LET'S OPERATE ON THE SHOW OURSELVES---THEN THE CONVALESCENCE WON'T BE SO COSTLY!
YOU'RE RIGHT AGAIN!
I'M GOING TO GIVE YOU BACK THE SAME AS YOU HANDED ME---PLENTY OF AIR! ONLY YOURS WAS CONVERSATIONAL AND MINE IS ATMOSPHERIC! GOOD-BYE, BOYS--- YOU'RE THROUGH!
YOU'RE JUST GIVING YOURSELF THE WORST OF IT!
AND HOW!

BRAND WINS NOBLE PRIZE FOR BEST STORY OF YEAR

Supervisors at Fox Film Studios, meeting yesterday, voted H. Bland a scholarship in Palmer Scenario Institute for telling this story more than any other man in the industry—

"Teacher asked class, 'Who wrote Hamlet?' Little Sammy Cohen spoke up, 'I didn't!' Teacher sent him home early for impertinence. Sammy's father asked him why he was home early. 'Teacher sent me,' says Sammy. Father, annoyed, goes over to school to talk with teacher. 'Why did you send Sammy home early?' he demanded. 'Because he was impertinent. I asked, Who wrote Hamlet? and he shouted, "I didn't!"' 'Lady,' said the irate father, 'My Sammy is an honest boy. If he says he didn't write Hamlet, he didn't write it.'"

Embarrassing Moments

Sir—

I am a moving picture art director. In order to obtain some research data for a prison picture I visited the local bastile and requested that I be taken through exactly as though I were a convicted criminal. You can imagine my embarrassment when some nine months later I discovered they had forgotten I was only visiting.

DON'T MOCK CHILDREN

By L. LAMAR MATTHEWS

HENRY is a handsome, intelligent young man with eyes that invite your confidence and a smile that warms your heart. He is well-educated, industrious, reliable and ambitious. But ever since he was a youngster at school he has been handicapped by an impediment in his speech—which, of course, has been a drawback to him in business and in society.

The tragedy of the thing is that he brought it upon himself, when he was too young to have any better sense. There was a poor fellow in the neighborhood who stammered and stuttered when he talked. Henry, being a good mimic, proceeded to mock him. He did it so well that other children and many grown-ups laughed at his imitation and encouraged him to repeat it. Before very long his family realized that he had acquired the defect himself.

For at least ten years Henry has been trying to overcome his habit of stammering, but as yet he has not succeeded. He probably could have been cured, if the matter had been taken in hand soon enough. Better still it could have been prevented—if somebody had just thought to show him the danger of mocking an unfortunate.

Quite often you see children mocking a cripple; imitating the speech, the manner or the deformity of somebody in the community. Even though that performance never results in anything serious, it should be frowned upon. Mocking the lame, the blind or the halt is a cruel thing to do.

Most children gloat in "making fun" of an unpopular associate. Almost every school and every neighborhood has one child who is the target for other children's ridicule and teasing.

The best cure for that kind of spirit is the good example of the adults at home. Mocking, ridicule, teasing should be met with frowns and disapproval, not with laughter or applause.

If only for selfish reasons, a child should be cured of this tendency. Hurt pride, wounded vanity, the smart of humiliation lasts a long time—long after the tormentor has forgotten all about the hilarious moment. And some day the tormentor will receive his just reward for the pain he brought upon his victim. Quite often the punishment is out of all proportion to the offense, and sometimes the source of the retribution is never suspected.

In this connection let it be said it is cowardly for a grown-up to ridicule a child; to wither him with sarcasm or to blight his joy with witty remarks at his expense. Teachers are rather given to this method of calling pupils down. Quite often parents indulge themselves in this manner. And all they get for their alleged cleverness is the resentment of the child. If the youngster dared say what was in his own mind he might possibly call attention to some of his elder's laughable shortcomings, but that revenge is denied him by reason of his age.

So if you must be cuttingly clever "jump on somebody your own size."

Reduce the Acid

In sick stomachs—instantly

Sick stomachs, sour stomachs and indigestion usually mean excess acid. The stomach nerves are over-stimulated. Too much acid makes the stomach and intestines sour.

Alkali kills acid instantly. The best form is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, because one harmless, tasteless dose neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Since its invention, 50 years ago, it has remained the standard with physicians everywhere.

Take a spoonful in water and your unhappy condition will probably end in five minutes. Then you will always know what to do. Crude and harmful methods will never appeal to you. Go prove this for your own sake. It may save a great many disagreeable hours.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excessive acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drugstore.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of the Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

MEDITATIONS OF A WIFE

By HELEN ROWLAND

SO many divorced couples are re-marrying these days that the unmarried women are beginning to be alarmed. You never know, when you meet a man, whether he is "somebody's husband still — or AGAIN.

* * *

We marry for absurd reasons; we divorce for trivial reasons. But we reunite for almost NO reason—just "for instance."

* * *

Breaking up a marriage is not always such a joyous and simple thing as it appears to be. That "just-after-the-parting" feeling is not the exhilarating sensation so many people imagine.

* * *

No matter how much of a disappointment or a torment a husband may have been, a woman misses him as she would a tooth or an eye. And even a bad tooth or a weak eye may be bitterly missed.

* * *

She misses the sound of his key in the latch—or even the nerve-racking uncertainty of WAITING for his key in the latch.

She misses the little stimulating before-breakfast arguments, the wild morning hunts for his hat, the good-bye peck on the cheek, the little ceremony of hanging up his pajamas and drying his safety razor.

* * *

She misses his big, soft handkerchief, that came in so nicely for removing the make-up, bathing the eyes, or polishing the mirrors.

* * *

She misses his penknife, his corkscrew, his tool-kit. His WATCH to get the clock by! The bay rum or lime water he used after shaving. His bunch of odd keys, his fountain pen—his SHOE HORN! No woman ever keeps a shoe horn!

* * *

"All alone in the world," she sobs, "and not even a shoe horn!"

* * *

And in a burst of pity she goes BACK to him—all for the sake of a shoe horn! Or a penknife! Or a fountain pen!

* * *

Or for somebody to take her out to dinner, and to scrap with at breakfast. Or for somebody to bring in the evening papers and carve the roast, or to reach the things on the top shelf, or to powder her back, or to make a noise around the house that will drown the lonely ticking of the dining room clock!

* * *

Not that she ever suspects this, of course. She THINKS she is going back to him for love, or to "save" him or to make him happy. But it is the little things that draw her by the heart-strings—the little habits and customs and dear familiar discomforts of married life!

* * *

Untwining lives that have been intertwined for a few years is a painful process. It always leaves the victims with that "all-gone" feeling. THAT is why wives "go back home!"

* * *

Which is Nature's way of pointing out the uncontestable fact that God meant us to hold together. Because the only thing harder than living with a human being in this world is living ALONE!

EXPOSED FOOD PIRATES FLEE

trading with him for some time.

Note carefully the name and license number of the wagon or pushcart where you buy meat, fish, fruit and vegetables.

Beware of candy that has been exposed for hours to every kind of dirt, dust and other combination.

A caution for late evening shopping is to be very careful in buying meat and poultry. Food may look entirely different in the natural light of the morning than it did under the garish night light.

This is especially true of decomposed flesh of poultry, particularly under the wings and on the legs and breast. Green does not show up clearly under electric light.

Watch and see that you get the food you have paid for. Permit no opportunity for a switching of parcels so that you get goods of an inferior quality. Such instances are not rare.

The careful inspection by local health authorities was shown in the recent seizure and condemnation of 22 crates of strawberries as being mouldy and decayed. By this action over 700 quarts of berries were withdrawn from public sale.

In another case, where inspection was made at the request of the owner of a stand, 30 pounds of cheek meat were seized as unwholesome.

NATIONAL POLICIES OF THE HEARST NEWSPAPERS

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peace among themselves and promote the peace of the world.
2. A constitutional amendment to provide for the election of United States Senators in numbers proportionate to the population of each State, but no State to have less than two Senators. A reapportionment of Congressional representation immediately after every census, or in case of the failure of Congress so to act, to make the apportionment automatic at the end of the first Congressional session, the proportion of population for each representative in each case to be that of the existing Congress.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defence.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal Government powers to abolish illiteracy among the people of the United States, and the creation of a Secretary of Education.
5. Necessary measures to secure the election of Congress in November and its installation on the 1st of January following, and the inauguration of a President on the 1st of January immediately following his election in November.

One of Our Sacred Days

A Nation's Gratitude Spreads Flowers Over the Resting-Places of Heroes

Year after year the troop of the living has grown smaller, the band of the dead increased, until at last the time has come to some New England communities when one gray and feeble old man will attempt on Memorial Day to lay flowers upon the graves of all his comrades.

The fame of Sheridan, Sherman, Grant and the martryed Chieftain endures, but to how many of the young people who assemble tomorrow in the burial places of the State will the names of Andrew, Hooker, Devens, Butler and Banks be significant?

Since their silent tents were spread, on Fame's eternal camping-ground, two other American armies have come marching home, THEIR battles fought, THEIR victories won.

Americans are about to perform a sacred and pious duty, reverently and gratefully making a pilgrimage to the graves of patriot-soldiers.

It is fit and proper that we should carry to these graves the first floral offerings of Spring, that we should pause to solemnly acknowledge our indebtedness to the Boys in Blue.

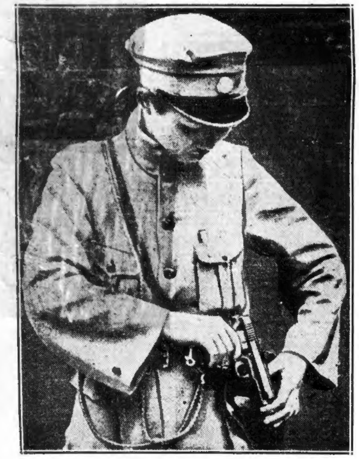
We are made holier and happier by such ministrations; he who makes such a pilgrimage has been reconsecrated.

Honoring their patriotism, let us resolve to emulate their example; glorifying their heroism, let us pledge anew our own loyalty and devotion.

Throughout New England let it be seen tomorrow—and let the lesson be taken to heart by such as need it—that our people have the same love of country that their fathers had and are prepared to endure the same hardships, suffer the same distress and surmount the same difficulties to prove that love.

Complicated Chinese Lady

Be Polite If You Meet Her



A CHINESE WOMAN FIGHTER

China's civil war is enlisting women to fight as well as men.

This lady, belonging to the Kuomintang party, trained by Russians to believe in Bolshevism, belongs to Russia's female "intelligentsia." She has a fountain pen in her upper left-hand pocket, as you will notice. And she is putting her automatic pistol back in its holster. Whether she has just finished shooting somebody or has been examining the weapon is not known.

In any case, a hard-working American would prefer a lady with a powder puff to this lady with the puff of powder.

Give 'Baby' a Chance

Lynn's Health Commissioner Warns Young Matrons Against "Reducing"

The fighting editor of the Fascist newspaper "Limpero," who asks the Italian government to show no more mercy toward "pedlars of thinness" than it does toward dope pedlars, finds a supporter in this neighborhood in the Public Health Commissioner of Lynn.

But Dr. William T. Hopkins agrees with Mario Carli, who looks upon reducing as "one of the most fatuous and most criminal tendencies of our age," only to an extent.

If the young woman is merely PRETENDING to be a flapper, but is actually beyond the flapper age, Dr. Hopkins says, dieting is good for her.

Where the "eternal" flapper makes HER mistake, in the opinion of the Lynn physician, is in the wearing of scanty attire. Her blood vessels being less flexible than those of the younger girl they cannot rise so quickly to the calls of exposed parts of the body. Hence the pretender, the "ex-flapper," should WEAR PLENTY OF CLOTHING.

MEMORIAL DAY

By DR. FRANK CRANE

PERHAPS one of our best institutions is Memorial Day, a day solemnly set apart and devoted to giving honor to the dead.

What have the dead done for us?

We often think that we are the architects of our own fortune, we are self-made men, our success has depended solely upon our own efforts, but how shortsighted is this view.

When we use electricity or operate the sewing machine or strike matches or bask in steam heat or do any one of the other thousands of things that spell comfort or efficiency in our lives, we are but harvesting what was sown by dead men.

When we enter into a library, the most solemn and imposing presence in the world, we are surrounded by the thoughts of dead men. We send children to school that they may become acquainted with what the dead have done. And many a man has been saved from some foolish experiment simply by finding out that years ago it was tried and was a failure.

What a man's worth will be to posterity is measured largely by the respect he pays to ancestry. It is not merely a vain and foolish gesture that much of the world, the Japanese and the Chinese, revere their ancestors.

Among the Orientals, love and respect for the old is a dominating motive. What we call our romantic feeling, which is merely a sublimation of the attraction of one sex for another, is given by the Eastern peoples a place distinctly secondary to that of love and respect for their fathers.

In some way this may possibly fix civilization at a certain point and prevent progress. But it also stabilizes and gives a dignity to life which we otherwise would miss.

We are inspired to great deeds by the knowledge of the great deeds of those who have gone before.

Every American is a better citizen when he reads of the achievements of George Washington. Every young person shows a truer sense of his responsibilities when he honors those who lived before him who nobly performed their duty.

The knowledge of Nathan Hale and his immortal sentence when dying, "My only regret is that I have but one life to give for my country," is an inspiration to every young man.

We are well persuaded that there never has been a war, as General Grant said, where the issue could not have been better settled some other way. At the same time this does not prevent us from commending the heroism of those who are willing to die for their principles.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

MY friend is building a stairway in her garden.

It will lead up, out of a shadowed pool, to an open, sunny place. The steps are made of rough cement and some of us, who love that garden and the two of whom it is a part, are setting tiles in the cement, in memory.

The tiles will all be different and I suspect that each one will be a key to the personality of its giver. If that is so, I am sure that one will be like a gay fragment from a Spanish shawl and one a gentle souvenir of rose and silver dreams. On one a gypsy ship will heel beneath a wind-whipped sky, and on another cypresses will frame a dream of peace. And one will be as dancing green as youth—and one all black and violet like a stormy soul—and one as white as lives bleached clean with tears.

It will be a strange and beautiful record, that tiled stairway upon which the climbing feet will rest—as strange as that eternal record which you and I are building, act by act. For that is what our lives will some day be—a pattern set deep in the soil of life, for other feet to follow on their long climb from the shadow to the sun.

It will not matter a hundred years from now whether we laughed or cried, whether we failed or succeeded. The only thing that will matter will be the pattern we made out of our dreams and rebellions, our laughter and tears.

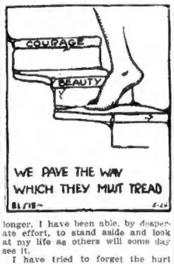
Did we make a gallant picture, or a weak, gray record of cowardice?

Did we leave beauty to lift those climbing feet, or jagged ugliness upon which they will stumble?

We will go on. We will go on with God, and perhaps He will tell us what it was all about. But those who come after will not be concerned with that. They will only be concerned with the pattern we have set for them to follow.

I do not know whether that thought will help you. It has helped me.

Sometimes, when I did not feel that I could endure my lot any longer, I have been able, by desperate effort, to stand aside and look at my life as others will some day see it.



COURAGE
BEAUTY
WE PAVE THE WAY WHICH THEY MUST TREAD
ELSIE
5-26

I have tried to forget the hurt and anger and emptiness, and I have looked at the thing as a whole—at the pattern it may leave on the long trail of eternity. And when I have thought of it that way, it was easier to stand the pain. For one can bear a great deal of suffering if out of it, at last, some small piece of enduring beauty comes.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

Self-love is the greatest of all flatterers.—La Rochefoucauld.

A lie which is half a truth is ever the blackest of lies.—Tennyson.

There is not a moment without some duty.—Cicero.

Forewarned, forearmed; to be prepared is half the victory.—Cervantes.

The greatest and most beautiful example of intellect is when it is effective in the well-ordering of cities and of private dwellings, and which is given the name of judgment and justice.—Plato.

When faith is lost, when honor dies,
The man is dead.
—Whittier.

All dies, as we often say, except the spirit of man, of what man does.—Carlyle.

New York Day by Day
by
O.O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, May 29—Etiquette sleuths report the dinner coat no longer permissible at smart gatherings where there are ladies. It has become strictly a stag garment this season and the tail coat has again been plucked out of the moth balls.

It tried to stage a comeback for several seasons, but only recently made the grade. Nor can it be worn with the crush opera hat as it was last season. A plush high hat is required. The Long Island veranda crowd is wearing white flannel dinner suits.

Another fashionable dining wrinkle is also reported coming from London. The very best people these days do not smoke at the table until the hostess lights up her cigarette. That is the signal that all are privileged to smoke. In my day it would be a signal for many women to go home with their noses in the air.

The one-stud shirt has held ground, but the sawed-off white vest has made way for the return of the V pointed weskit. The top swank in evening sticks is an ebony with a small white knob and the replica of the owner's signature engraved on the side.

The evening handkerchief should be folded into a square and only a slight edge should show from the breast pocket. The smart evening shoes are of one piece of patent leather. The gardenia is the correct lapel flower, although Michael Arlen is wearing a bright red rosebud.

Every gentleman should have a platinum chain for his key. It is attached to a suspender button and falls in a loop to the left trouser pocket. Of course, he must have the monogrammed accessories—such as a cigarette case, patent lighter and pencil. All to match.

Oh, yes, pearl cufflinks and white gloves are necessary pour le nuit. The Prince of Wales continues to set styles, not only overseas, but for America. News comes he is now preparing to introduce a dark gray dinner suit with wide velvet lapels. Can you beat it?

THERE is a general belief that New York gentlemen invariably "dress" for dinner. Before I came here I had an idea they went straight from their infantile youknowwhats into dinner clothes. Proportionately there is no more dinner dressing here than in Indianapolis or Spokane.

GREENWICH, Ct., an hour by train from Grand Central, is said to be one of the richest towns in America in proportion to population. It is also one of the most aristocratic communities in the New York suburban zone. There are more yacht owners there than any other spot hereabouts. Greenwich is pronounced "Gren-itch."

NOW they are saying that chow mein in the Broadway Chinese cafes for which a charge of $1.50 is made really costs 21 cents. Well, even that is an improvement over the $1.50 charge of the night clubs for a six-cent bottle of gingerale. I'll never get over that, it seems. It has been breaking my heart for five years.

THE real justifiable holler should come over the gyppery in one of the smartest dining places in town. Before each diner they place a few olives and a sprig of celery, whether you have ordered it or not. If you eat a single olive or nibble at a stalk of celery, you must pay $1 per person. This is no polite gyppery. It is plain second-story work. Still the place continues to be crowded, so don't mind my squawk.

INCIDENTALLY, the old Palais Royal is now known as the Palais d'Or and the Chinese proprietor is known as Mr. d'Or. Many ask for him.

A SIGHT-SEEING bus starter is authority for the news that Brooklyn bridge is the most popular attraction for summer tourists "because they want to see the place where Steve Brodie made his leap."

"What is more important is that dieting as practiced by YOUNG women, especially YOUNG MATRONS who persist in clinging to the boyish figures of maidenhood, is a distinct menace to the next generation. Records show that where the mother is young the rate of infant mortality has greatly increased. Frankly speaking, and in the parlance of layman, babies of the age are of poor quality, undernourished and weakened at the start. Frequently, they are unable to withstand the rigors of life.

"There is a common-sense weight for all women. It is not natural for a mature woman to have a boyish figure.

"On the other hand there are many mature women in Lynn who might with profit to themselves try to obtain a MORE boyish figure by eating less and doing more dancing, if necessary. They can emulate the flapper to advantage in these instances, but they cannot afford to ape her scanty clothing. They may not admit it, but they are not young in years and in their cases nature has done providing for the carelessness of youth."

That may satisfy Lynn and Massachusetts, it appears to be reasonable, but it is not as the Romans will do if they listen to the editor who recently was saying things about ladies who smoke cigarettes, paint their faces, display their legs, etc.

"OUR women," Signor Carli says on behalf of the males of Italia, "must please US, not the Parisian tailors. And WE—let there be no mistake about this—WE like pulp, not bone; firm, healthy flesh, not squeezed skin; the colors of health, not those of make-up."

Let an Essex County editor venture to hand down the law in any such high and mighty way and we can hear the girls saying, "Is that so!"

They are much more likely to heed and ponder Dr. Hopkins' warning, that the young matron who acquires a fashionable silhouette by taking off superfluous fat MAY do so at the expense of the babies which are to come to her.

Young or old, the woman who contemplates "going upon a diet" should FIRST talk things over with the family physician.
